BERNSTORFF LEARNS THE PRESIDENT'S VIEWS IN A HALF-HOUR TALK

German Ambassador and Wilson
Have Friendly Conference in Blue
Room at White House, and Kaiser's Representative Prepares Afterward to Communicate With Berlin.

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 2.—Count Johann von Bernstorff, German Ambassador and personal representative of the German Emperor, had a friendly and cordial half-hour conference with President Wilson today. The Ambassador arrived at the White House at noon and he and the President sat down on the davenport in the historic blue room overlooking the Potomac and discussed the situation growing out of the sinking of the Lusitania. Inasmuch as the conference was of an informal character no announcement concerning it was expected to be made.

It was understood, however, that the object of the Ambassador's call was to gain from the President an idea of the points in the last American note which the United States is determined to insist upon and to give the President an idea of the German viewpoint.

The President, it was said, showed willingness to explain the position of the United States and to make it clear that it had been decided on only after careful consideration by the cabinet yesterday, when it was decided to send a note of inquiry asking whether the imperial Government would abide by the principle of international law. The President, it also was understood, gave his views, expecting the Ambassador to enlighten the Berlin Government on the earnest intentions of the United States to obtain a strict accountability for the loss of the Americans on the Lusitania. The visit was friendly and cordial.

While Count Bernstorff was in the blue room with the President the Italian Ambassador, Count Masochi di Cellere, arrived, but the two diplomats, whose nations are on opposite sides in the war, did not meet.

Engagement at Bernstorff's Request.
White House officials declined to make any statements regarding Count Bernstorff's visit, saying the engagement was made at the Ambassador's request, and that it would be improper for the President to say anything concerning it.

Reports that the Ambassador had made any definite proposals were generally discounted. The President has already begun the preparation of the next note to Germany, and it was not expected that the call of the Ambassador would have any material effect on either its sense or its wording. Immediately after his visit to the White House, Count Bernstorff returned to the embassy and went into conference with the head of the Chancery. It appeared that he was about to communicate with Berlin.

With the exception of the hour divided between the German and Italian Ambassadors, President Wilson spent the entire morning in his study working on the new note, which officials expect will go before the Cabinet Friday and be dispatched to Berlin immediately afterward.

The German Ambassador had told friends that he realized the seriousness of the situation and was anxious to do all that he could personally to prevent a rupture in friendly relations. He is unable to communicate easily, however, with his Government, because German cables were cut by the allies.

Refusal to recognize the principles set forth by the United States that every unarmed merchantman must be visited and searched and passengers and crew transferred to a place of safety before the vessel and cargo of contraband is destroyed will be followed, it is generally predicted, by a severance of diplomatic intercourse with Germany.

Acceptance of the principle in a way as to guarantee the safety of American lives would lead, it was believed, to a reiteration of the request for reparation due the families of the American victims of the Lusitania and a disavowal of the act.

The President listened to a varied expression of opinion at a meeting of his Cabinet yesterday, taking little part in the discussion himself. The verdict of a majority of the Cabinet was that the German reply was unresponsive and unsatisfactory, disregarding the good will of the United States, doubted its facts and disclaimed all blame for the destruction of the merchantman with

MAYOR KIEL SEES CLEVELAND CITY ELECTRIC PLANT

Learns on Arriving There Minimum Rate Is Cut to Half Cent Per Kilowatt Hour.

ALDERMAN WITH HIM

They Comment on Fact That
New Rate Is Lower Than Union Electric Pays.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

CLEVELAND, O., June 2.—Cleveland officials greeted Mayor Kiel and his party of Aldermen and St. Louis city officials this morning with the announcement that the municipal lighting plant yesterday reduced its minimum rate from 1 cent to 1/2 cent per kilowatt hour.

The Aldermen commented on the fact that this minimum is lower than the price paid by the Union Electric in St. Louis for Keokuk water power current. The Keokuk current is sold to St. Louis utilities at a rate of approximately 64 per kilowatt hour, a price based upon the estimated cost of generating current with soft coal mined in Illinois. The price of standard mine run coal at St. Louis is about $1.42 per ton.

The Cleveland municipal plant is paying $1.73 per ton for coal today. Mayor Newton Baker and Lighting Commissioner Frederick W. Ballard escorted the St. Louis party through the lighting plant this morning. Commissioner Ballard said that since his visit to St. Louis March 10, the Cleveland plant has increased its daily earnings from $1000 to $1500, and its connected customers have increased from 10,000 to 12,000 in less than two months.

The privately owned lighting plant at Cleveland charges residence consumers a primary rate of 10 cents per kilowatt hour and a secondary rate of 5 cents. It lowest lighting rate to commercial consumers is 3 cents per kilowatt hour, and the lowest power rate is about 1 cent, except that it furnishes current to street railways for 6.5 mills, delivered at the generating station.

VEHICLES FORBIDDEN TO CROSS LINE OF FUNERAL PROCESSIONS

Police to Enforce New Ordinance
Making Such Action Punishable
by Fine of $5 to $500.

Enforcement of a new ordinance, forbidding automobiles or wagons to cross or enter the line of a funeral procession, will begin at once, Chief of Police Young announced today. His attention was called to the matter by William G. Alexander, representing the local undertakers' organization.

The ordinance was the last passed by the old House of Delegates before its dissolution. It was signed by Mayor Kiel. It provides that no person shall obstruct, pass through or otherwise interfere with any moving funeral procession. Exceptions are made in the case of fire apparatus, police wagons and ambulances, mail wagons and street railway trouble wagons. The fine for violation is $5 to $500.

The undertakers, who had the ordinance prepared, say it was needed to overcome a frequent abuse.

ONE OF THE ROWE TWINS ACCUSED OF SALOON SHOOTING

Howard Graham in Ante-Mortem
Statement Says Thomas Rowe
Wounded Him.

HAD JUST BEEN WARNED

Wife of Injured Man Prays by His Side Until Ambulance
Arrives.

Howard Graham of 1923 Olive street, in an ante-mortem statement at the city hospital today, to Assistant Circuit Attorney Fitzgerald, named Thomas Rowe as the man who shot him twice in John Miller's saloon at 1923 Olive street.

The police are looking for Rowe, who is a twin brother of David Rowe, against whom Graham was to have testified before the grand jury today in an inquiry involving a saloon robbery. In his statement to Fitzgerald, Graham said he was in Miller's saloon about 5:30 last night when a man whom he said he did not know entered and said to him: "If you're not careful you won't live to testify before the grand jury tomorrow."

A few minutes later, Graham said, he started to leave the saloon and as he passed through a swinging door between the barroom and the cigar stand he met Thomas Rowe.

Neither spoke a word. "I didn't say a word to him and he didn't speak to me," said Graham. "He just shot me with a pistol. He shot me first in the left arm. I turned and ran back into the saloon and he shot me in the back. I can't be mistaken in the man. It was Thomas Rowe, twin brother of David Rowe."

Surgeons at the city hospital found that Graham was shot from the front in the left arm and was shot in the back, the bullet penetrating his lung. An eyewitness told the police the shot was fired "by one of the Rowe twins." Knowing that David Rowe was in jail, the police began a search for his brother.

Wife Prays at His Side.
Graham, who is a bartender, 41 years old, was taken to the city hospital, where surgeons traced the course of the bullet through one of his lungs. His wife, Mrs. Anna Graham, reached the saloon a few minutes after the shooting and knelt in prayer at his side until the ambulance arrived. She accompanied him to the hospital.

On the night of April 1 three men entered Miller's saloon, where Graham at that time was employed as a bartender. They drew revolvers and ordered Graham to throw up his hands, but he, recognizing them as acquaintances, thought they were joking. They then put the bartender and a customer in the room, took $5 from the customer and $24 from the cash register and escaped. Graham told the police the robbers were David Rowe, Ros Sanders and George Warrance and their arrest followed.

Graham Gets Warning.
While the preliminary hearing of the three men was pending Graham was repeatedly warned that he had better not testify against David Rowe. He was told that as Rowe was one of twins he might have been mistaken in the identification. Thomas Rowe, that committed the robbery, Graham insisted, that he was well enough acquainted with the brothers to distinguish them and at the preliminary hearing he swore David Rowe was one of the three men that held him up.

Rowe, Sanders and Warrance were held for the grand jury in the sum of $2500 each. Warrance furnished bond, but Rowe and Sanders were remanded to jail. Graham had been summoned to appear before the grand jury today.

GERMANS ON FURLOUGH ARE FORBIDDEN TO ENTER BARS

Order Points Out That Leave Is for Purpose of Recuperation and Purpose Might Be Defeated.

BERLIN, June 2.—The military authorities have issued an order applicable to Berlin forbidding both officers of all ranks and private soldiers and recruits any of the large number of "luxury restaurants and cafes" in Berlin, as well as all bars and wineries.

The order points out that the purpose of furlough granted to officers and men is for recuperation from the rigors of life at the front and the recuperation of nerves and body is seriously endangered by visits to these restaurants and wineries.

A number of West End resorts, catering especially to the military, will be hard hit by this regulation.

COFFINS BRING BIDS OF 10 CENTS EACH AT UNDERTAKER'S AUCTION

Coffins, which the auctioneer facetiously said could be used for flat boats in these high-water times, brought a bid of 10 cents each at a Sheriff's sale in Belleville yesterday afternoon when the property of the Brichler-Buchholz Livery and Undertaking Co. was sold under an execution on an $11,000 judgment held by G. W. Brichler of East St. Louis. Constable Ben Lautz was the auctioneer. A horse brought a bid of $2 and 100 shrouds a bid of $10. The sale was conducted in two ways. The property was offered piece by piece and then offered as a whole. Under the first plan the total amount bid was $3380. G. W. Brichler then bid in the property as a whole for $5000. The sale lasted 12 hours.

STATEMENT ADDRESSED TO CARRANZA, VILLA, ZAPATA AND GARZA

Each Faction Has Failed to Establish Government When Successful at Arms—Country Starving,

UNITED STATES WANTS
NOTHING IN MEXICO

Time Has Come for This Government as Mexico's
Friend to Do What It Can to Aid in Setting
Up a Constitutional Government in the Interest of the People.

President's Warning to the Factions in Mexico

"I, THEREFORE, publicly and very solemnly call upon the leaders of factions in Mexico to act, to act together, and to act promptly, for the relief and redemption of their prostrate country. I feel it to be my duty to tell them that, if they can not accommodate their differences and unite for this great purpose within a very short time, this Government will be constrained to decide that means be employed by the United States in order to help Mexico save herself and serve her people."—From President Wilson's statement to the American people today on the Mexican question.

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 2.—In a statement to the Mexican people today, President Wilson served notice on the factional leaders of Mexico that unless within "a very short time" they unite to set up a Government which the world can recognize, the United States "will be constrained to decide what means should be employed by the United States in order to help Mexico save herself and serve her people."

Signaling a change from the "watchful waiting" policy, which has guided relations with Mexico for more than two years, the President's statement was regarded everywhere in official and diplomatic quarters as notice of a new and vigorous policy to restore peace below the Rio Grande.

Everywhere it was interpreted as a warning that the patience of the United States is exhausted. What steps the President is prepared to take if his warning goes unheeded is not disclosed in the statement. In high official quarters, nevertheless, no doubt existed that he was prepared to proceed.

The warning to Mexico went forward by telegraph today to American agents, who will deliver it to the factional leaders. The statement goes to Carranza, Villa, apata and Garza, the principal leaders, not as a diplomatic note from the United States, but as a declaration of President Wilson's attitude, expressed in a statement to the American people as follows:

"For more than two years revolutionary conditions have existed in Mexico. The purpose of the revolution was to rid Mexico of men who ignored the constitution of the republic and used their power in contempt of the right of its people, and with these purposes the people of the United States instinctively and generously sympathized. But the leaders of the revolution, in the very hour of their success, have disagreed and turned their arms against one another.

"All professing the same objects, they are, nevertheless, unable or unwilling to co-operate. A central authority at Mexico City is no sooner set up than it is undermined and its authority denied by those who were expected to support it.

"Mexico is apparently no nearer a solution of her tragical troubles than she was when the revolution was first kindled. And she has been swept by civil war as if by fire. Her crops are destroyed, her fields lie unseeded, her work cattle are confiscated for the use of the armed factions, her people flee to the mountains to escape being drawn into unavailing bloodshed and no man seems to see or lead the way to peace and settled order. There is no proper protection either for her own citizens or for the citizens of other nations resident and at work within her territory. Mexico is starving and without government.

"In these circumstances the people and Government of the United States can not stand indifferently by and do nothing to serve their neighbor. They want nothing for themselves in Mexico. Least of all, do they desire to settle her affairs for her or claim any right to do so.

But neither do they wish to see utter ruin come upon her, and they deem it their duty as friends and neighbors to lend any aid they properly can to any instrumentality which promises to be effective in bringing about a settlement which will embody the real objects of the revolution—constitutional government and the rights of the people. Patriotic Mexicans are sick at heart and cry out for peace and for every self-sacrifice that may be necessary to procure it. Their people cry out for food and will presently have as much as they fear every man in their country or out of it, who stands between them and their daily bread.

"It is time, therefore, that the Government of the United States should frankly state the policy which, in these extraordinary circumstances, it becomes its duty to adopt. It must presently do what it has not hitherto done or felt at liberty to do, lend its active moral support to some man or group of men, if such may be found, who can rally the suffering people of Mexico to their support in an effort to ignore, if they can not unite, the warring factions of the country, return to the constitution of the republic so long in abeyance and set up a government at Mexico City which the great powers of the world can recognize and deal with, a government with whom the program of the revolution will be a business and not merely a platform.

"I, therefore, publicly and very solemnly call upon the leaders of factions in Mexico to act together and to act promptly for the relief and redemption of their prostrate country. I feel it to be my duty to tell them that, if they can not accommodate their differences and unite for this great purpose within a very short time, this Government will be constrained to decide what means should be employed by the United States in order to help Mexico save herself and serve her people."

The statement prepared after yesterday's cabinet meeting was intended for issuance early today, but was delayed by some minor changes made in conference between the President and Secretary Bryan. It was to have been made public at 10 a. m., but was delayed until shortly after noon.

While it was being given out at the White House it was being flashed on its way to Consul Stillman at Vera Cruz, the Brazilian minister at Mexico City and Consul General Carothers, who will deliver it to the leaders of factions with which they deal.

White House officials refused to amplify the President's statement, saying that any further steps in his new policy would be announced as they were decided on.

Later today President Wilson conferred with Miss Mabel T. Boardman of the Executive Committee of the Red Cross on relief for the famine sufferers.

Secretary Bryan announced the receipt of a dispatch from the Mexican Red Cross, emphasizing the great need in Mexico City. Another appeal to local Red Cross committees throughout the country will be issued soon to expedite gathering of supplies at the border.

President's Statement Pleases Villa's Agents in New York.

NEW YORK, June 2.—Gen. Villa's representative in New York City, Francisco Uruqui, said he was much gratified by President Wilson's new policy toward Mexico.

"That is fine," Senor Uruqui said after reading the President's pronouncement to the Mexican leaders. "That is just what we expected from President Wilson. To be perfectly frank, I might say that we—the Villa people—have tried, on more than one occasion, to do just what President Wilson has suggested. Mr. Carranza, however, is a very hard-headed man."

"The military mastery of Mexico, Senor Uruqui said, would depend much upon a great battle which is now being waged around Leon, northwest of Mexico City. This battle between the Carranza and Villa troops, he said, had been in progress for eight days. More men than had fought in any other battle in Mexico's recent troubles were taking part, he said, and to the victor would probably go control of the situation in the republic."

Referring to the President's statement, Senor Uruqui said: "Everything President Wilson sets forth is true; all right-thinking men in Mexico know that."

TEN AMERICANS KILLED IN MEXICO

Steamer Captain Learned at Tampico of Killings by Mexicans Near There.

SALVADOR, Tex., June 2.—Capt. Oscar Lane of the tanker Winfield, which arrived from Tampico last night, is reported as saying that 10 or 15 Americans have been killed by Mexicans near Tampico in the last few days. His information was based on reports received in Tampico just before his departure.

It was impossible to get a detailed statement from Capt. Lane early today, as his ship was proceeding up the Houston ship channel.

MISSOURI PACIFIC HAS BEEN SAVED FROM RECEIVERSHIP

President Bush Announces Note Holders Have Agreed to Extension of $25,000,000 Securities.

B. F. Bush, president of the Missouri Pacific Railway Co., today told a Post-Dispatch reporter that all anxiety lest the railroad be thrown into the hands of receivers had been set at rest for at least another year.

This expression followed the receipt of a message from New York that the board of directors of the road had designed operative the plan to extend for a year the payment of the $25,000,000 6 per cent notes of the company.

About 90 per cent of the noteholders agreed to the extension and the others will have until June 7 to approve it.

The notes are now due, but the acceptance of the extension plan by a large percentage of the holders will relieve the company of the necessity of taking them up.

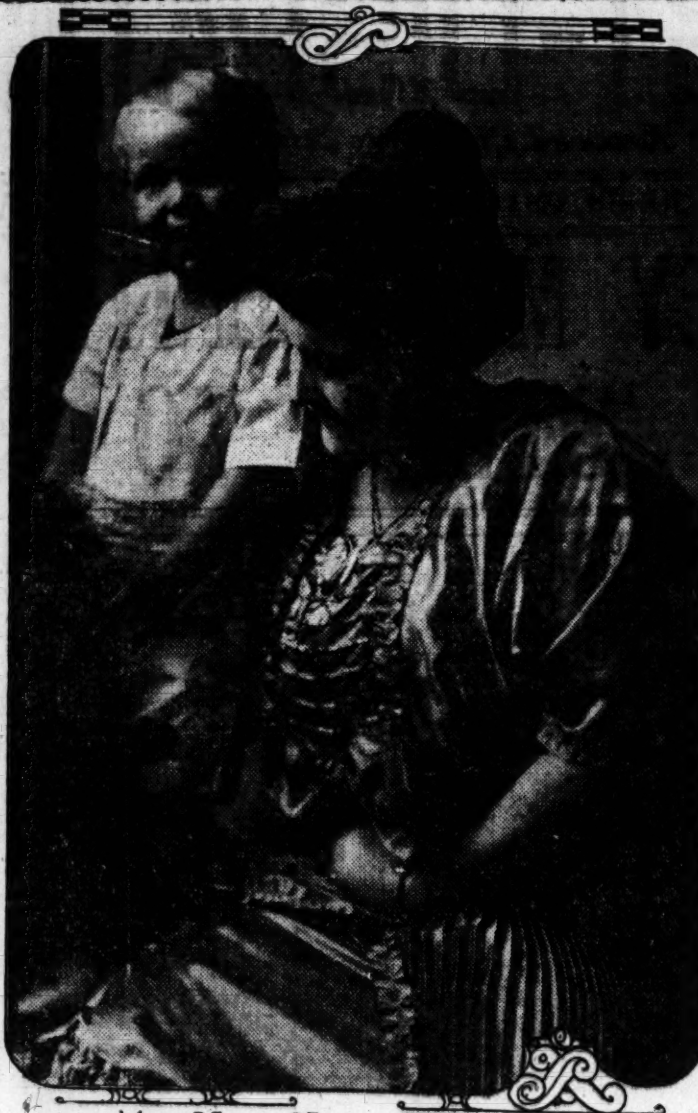

Each noteholder, Bush said, will receive six months' interest, amounting to 3 per cent, and in addition will receive a renewal fee of 1/4 per cent.

Instead of being required to take up the notes at an expenditure of $25,000,000 the company will renew them at an outlay of $25,000.

Illinois Legislature Pay Increased.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., June 2.—The house today passed the bill, increasing the salary of Legislators from $2000 a year to $2500, and also the bill appropriating $25,000 to reimburse members of the railroad forces at the rate of 2 cents a mile, spent in traveling between their homes and legislative sessions.

President's Note to Germany to Go Before Saturday

whether the carriage of ammunition is a violation of American law.

Measures Express Confidence. Expressions of confidence in the President have come in telegrams from all parts of the country.

Officials reiterated today that the United States has absolute proof that the Lusitania was unarmed—that details of an investigation made by customs inspectors at New York before the Washington Government when the note of May 12 was written by the President.

It became known that when that note first was drafted it pointed out that lives of American citizens could not be lawfully placed in jeopardy on merchantmen "which did not resist capture," but, on mature deliberation and an investigation of all the facts, the words "unarmed merchantmen" were inserted covering all cases in strict conformity with recognized principles of international law in the past.

One of the suggestions made in official quarters was that Germany easily could have learned the status of British merchantmen leaving American ports by inquiry at the State Department and that if prior to the sailing of the Lusitania information tending to prove that the Lusitania would carry guns on its voyage were in the possession of German submarine commanders.

Word to the effect that Germany had announced, on receipt of the report of the submarine commander, that the torpedoing of the Lusitania was a mistake, was received in Washington Monday from Ambassador Gerard.

British Foreign Office Silent on Food Contraband Question.

LONDON, June 2.—The Foreign Office declined to make any reply to the allegation contained in the German reply to President Wilson reflecting on the position of the British Government on the food and contraband question.

Unofficially, however, it was pointed out to American correspondents that even if Great Britain gave up her reprisal measures and permitted an abundance of food to enter Germany there would be no guarantee which would effectually prevent Germany from resuming her submarine warfare exactly where she left off except Germany's word, which is not highly regarded at present in England.

The situation between the United States and Germany is being watched with the closest interest, and many newspapers continue to feature prominently their comments upon it.

A dispatch to the Chronicle to Copenhagen quotes the Berlinische Tidende of that city as declaring, in the course of its comments upon Germany's advice to neutrals to take the greatest possible care to avoid being mistaken for British ships, that the Danish steamer Soborg was torpedoed in broad daylight, at 10 in the morning, on a clear day, although she was furnished with every possible means of identification.

PEPER HEIR'S WIFE TO SHOW HER NO. 3 FEET TO THE JUDGE

Mrs. Helen H. Bell Thinks Husband Wronged Her in Telling Her She Had Big Ones.

Mrs. Helen Hazel Bell, who sued yesterday to divorce Christian Peper Bell, a grandson of the late Christian Peper, tobacco magnate, told a Post-Dispatch reporter today that she believed she could prove to a jury that her husband wronged her when he told her she had big feet.

Mrs. Bell took up her residence yesterday at The Lodge, Belt and Etzel avenues. Her husband is living with his father, Nicholas M. Bell, former Excise Commissioner, at 442 West Pine boulevard. In her suit Mrs. Bell asserts that her husband abused her by frequently telling her she had big feet.

"I am rather proud of my feet," said Mrs. Bell in speaking of her suit. "I wear a No. 3 shoe, and that's better than a majority of young women of my build can show."

Blonde, With Big Blue Eyes. Mrs. Bell is 22 years old, of the blonde type and has big blue eyes. The eyes fell upon her walking boots of black patent leather with tan kid tops, as she told how her husband's jests concerning her feet caused her great anguish of mind. She lifted her white duck skirt just a tiny bit and displayed the two little feet, remarking as she did so: "I'm going to take those feet right into court, and I'm not afraid of any judgment that will be given upon their size. I think they are nice and little."

Another of Mrs. Bell's complaints is that her husband told her she had a lump on her nose and said the same thing to others. She said that such remarks pained her and that she had searched in the looking glass for any lump and did not believe there was a lump. At any rate, she said, she was willing to let the court judge as to the lump at the same time the size of her feet were considered. She said she did not consider those comments of her husband in the nature of jokes.

Kloped in April, 1912. I suppose he will say he was joking when he used to come home intoxicated night after night and make trouble," she said. "Once he tore up one of my hats. If that is a joke I cannot see it."

Mrs. Bell was Miss Hazel Walker of 287 Page avenue. She eloped with Peper Bell to St. Charles in April, 1912. Bell's father attempted to follow the couple and prevent the marriage, but forgave his son after the marriage and obtained work for him in Texas, where he remained until last December, when he was made assistant superintendent of the Christian Peper tobacco factory.

Young Bell received one-fourth of the $100,000 estate left by his mother, the larger portion going to his sister, Marjorie, who is soon to marry Richard Heinrichs.

The Bells have one child, Nicholas, who is now with his mother. She asks for custody of the child.

German Formally Announces Attack on Gulfight Was Mistake.

BERLIN, via London, June 2.—The German Government has transmitted a communication to James W. Gerard, American Ambassador at Berlin, explaining that the torpedoing of the American steamer Gulfight off the Scilly Islands on May 1 was a mistake.

Germany disavows any intention of attacking harmless neutral ships, and, in cases where she is at fault, she offers to compensate.

Woman's Temple Held in Chicago.

CHICAGO, June 2.—The woman's temple, a 16-story office building long the encumbered property of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, was sold at auction today for $281,000, to satisfy a mortgage held by the Field Columbian Museum. The women have a year in which to redeem the building.

Exercise Beneficial to Women

Strength Often May Be Gained by Judicious Activity on Part of the Sick.

The woman suffering from ill effects loses ambition and will not exert herself in the least; her muscles become flabby, her circulation bad and nerves wrecked. Another woman suffering from the same ill will lay out for herself a system of convalescent exercises of deep breathing even before leaving her bed. If the woman will but write Dr. Pierce at the Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y., she can get free medical advice in such cases, also a 1000-page book with advice on Hygiene, How to care for the sick, Diseases of women, etc., all for 3 dimes or 30 cts. in stamps to pay for mailing.

200,000 IN ITALY ENLIST; NO MORE TO BE ACCEPTED

Ranks of Army Filled for the Present; Austrian Aeroplanes Raid Several Towns.

ROME, June 2.—Two hundred thousand volunteers already have presented their names to the Ministry of War, and it has been decided to accept no more at present.

The following statement was issued today at the headquarters of the General Staff of the Italian army:

"A series of engagements fought on May 30 in Carniola, west of Monte Croce della, ended in the defeat of the enemy, who left 20 dead and numerous wounded in front of our lines."

"During May 31 there were small actions all along the frontier as the result of a new disposition of our advance troops. The bad weather, which continues to create serious difficulties, had not had the slightest effect on the spirits or health of our soldiers."

"The Austrian aeroplanes, which threw bombs on Sari this morning, afterwards went to Molitza (a short distance north-west of Sari) where it dropped more bombs. One workman was killed."

Announcement was made by the Ministry of Marine today that the Italian fleet spent all of yesterday in cruising off the Austrian coast without sighting the Austrian fleet.

Austrian Aeroplanes Found in Sea Near Italian Coast.

BRINDISI, Italy, June 2.—An Austrian hydroaeroplane has been found floating in the sea near here. It is evident the aviators who manned it have been drowned. This machine is supposed to be the same one which flew over Brindisi yesterday morning, throwing down bombs. An examination indicated the machine had been built in Germany.

Writings and drawings found on it showed apparently that the aviators had been inspecting the coast, evidently with the idea of a possible landing of troops.

STEAMER IS SUNK: SEVEN LIVES LOST

LONDON, June 2.—The British steamer Saldieh of 194 tons, from Alexandria, Egypt, for Hull, was torpedoed yesterday in the North Sea. Seven members of the crew, including a stewardess, were drowned. Forty-one survivors were landed today at Chatham.

The Saldieh had a crew of 46 persons. A British commander and eight passengers of different nationalities. The loss of life was the result of the jamming of davits while one of the boats was being lowered. The occupants of this boat were thrown into the water. Those in the other boats were picked up by a trawler. They assert that no warning was given before the vessel was torpedoed. It sank in 15 minutes.

300,000 Russians Captured by the Germans in May.

BERLIN, June 2.—The German army headquarters announced today that more than 300,000 Russians had been captured in May. Announcement was made that Freymuth had been captured.

The War Office official statement today says in part:

"In the month of May, 86 officers and 35,000 men were taken prisoners in the southeastern theater of the war, while 251 cannon and 578 machine guns were captured. Of these numbers, the capturing of 400 officers, including 25 Generals; 103,284 men, 100 cannon, including 25 heavy ones, and 406 machine guns is to the credit of the troops under Gen.

Omaha Annexes Suburbs.

OMAHA, Neb., June 2.—The population of the city of Omaha was increased by 27,500 yesterday, when the proposition of annexation carried at a special election in Omaha, South Omaha and Dundas, by a majority of 8 to 1. The population of Omaha is increased to approximately 200,000.

Sergt. O'Leary, "Bravest Man in the British Army," Reads of Death in Action

LONDON, June 2.

SERGENT MICHAEL O'LEARY, who won the Victoria cross by his single-handed achievement of killing eight men and capturing two trenches, a machine gun and two prisoners, has written to his parents, after reading obituary notices proclaiming him the bravest man in the British army. His letter says:

"I am in today's papers that I have been killed in action. No! I am still on the firing line doing my bit for King and country. I trust God is not going to call me soon, or until I have done a bit more for my country. I came out of the last battle with only a few scratches, thank God."

O'Leary's death was reported in London last Friday. It brought from the press more glowing praise than has followed the loss of any other subordinate British officer since the war began.

Mackensen. Including prisoners taken in the eastern theater of war, as well as those announced yesterday the total number of Russians who have fallen into the hands of the Germanic allied troops during the month of May amount to about 1000 officers and more than 300,000 men."

300 MINERS AT CARTHAGE ON STRIKE: 8000 MAY GO OUT

40 Per Cent Increase in Wages Demanded With One at Highest Price Ever Known.

CARTHAGE, Mo., June 2.—Three hundred men employed at the mines of the American Zinc, Lead and Smelt. Co., 15 miles southwest of here, went on a strike last night. They have demanded an increase of 40 per cent in wages. It is reported that other miners in the district will follow their example. A general strike would affect about 8000 men.

The advance of ore to an $85 basis, a world's price record, has caused the men to think they should be given a corresponding increase in wages.

SEBASTIAN WINS IN LOS ANGELES

LOS ANGELES, Cal., June 2.—Charles E. Sebastian, Chief of Police, is Mayor-elect of Los Angeles, according to indications of the nearly completed count of votes at yesterday's election. His estimated plurality over Frederick J. Whiffen, President of the City Council, was 8000 votes.

Sebastian's election follows closely his acquittal of the charge of contributing to the dependency of Edith Serkin, a minor. His advisers asserted that the charges against the chief were part of a plot to prevent his election.

Mrs. Estelle Lawton Lindsey was elected to the City Council. Mrs. Maud Crow Waters was elected to the Board of Education. She is president of one of the largest women's organizations in California.

RIVER UNLIKELY TO FALL BEFORE END OF WEEK

Flood Stage of 30.8 Inches Causes Steamboats to Be Navigated With Difficulty.

The river at St. Louis, which was rising slowly today, will remain above flood stage through tomorrow and possibly for the remainder of the week, according to the Weather Bureau's bulletin this morning.

The stage at the local wharf at 7 a. m. morning was 30.8 inches, 4 of an inch higher than it was 24 hours before. The Weather Bureau predicted that a stage somewhat over 31 feet, possibly as high as 31.5 feet, would be reached tomorrow and that this would, from present indications, be the crest of the high water here.

The water has covered one of the surface tracks on the levee, near Eads Bridge, and steamboats have had to remove the upper parts of their stacks to get under Eads and Merchants bridges.

The Missouri River is falling above Hermann and will begin to fall at St. Charles tomorrow, it is predicted. The Illinois and the upper Mississippi, however, are rising slowly.

Reports of damage have come from the lowlands on the Missouri side opposite Alton and on the Illinois side south of Alton. Several families who were driven from their homes in the lowlands back of the Illinois Glass factory and in East End place have applied for help under Alton police and charitable institutions.

HOBSON ASKS WILSON TO CALL LUSITANIA COURT OF INQUIRY

If Germany's Contentions Are True We Have No Right to Demand Disavowal, He Says.

NEW YORK, June 2.—George H. Hull Jr., of 30 Pine street, gave out last evening a copy of a telegram which his brother-in-law, Carl Richmond Pearson Hobson, sent to President Wilson Monday.

Capt. Hobson recommends that the President determine the question of fact in reference to the Lusitania, "by calling a regular court of inquiry as did President McKinley on the destruction of the Maine and President Cleveland in his Venezuelan message."

Referring to Germany's contentions that the Lusitania was armed, carried troops and munitions and was in effect a submarine destroyer, Capt. Hobson says:

WHY YOU SHOULD VOTE FOR THE PARKWAY—MOTIVES BACK OF OPPOSITION

PERSONAL FIGHT ON OPPONENTS OF THE PARKWAY

Citizens' Committee Charges Them With Being Actuated by Purley Selfish Motives.

THEIR RECORDS REVIEWED

Real Estate Operations of Lionberger and Wackman Discussed by T. D. Cannon.

PARKWAY MEETINGS TONIGHT. Princess Theater, Grand avenue and Olive street, at 8 p. m. Speakers, Thomas D. Cannon, Carl M. Dubinsky, Dr. E. O. Greer and Mrs. Kate Richards O'Hare.

FOURTEENTH WARD DEMOCRATIC CLUB. Drum Corps Hall, Iowa avenue and Sidney street, at 8 p. m. Speaker, Vincent McShane.

WEDNESDAY MEETING TOMORROW. Parkway headquarters, 521 Olive street, at 12:30 p. m. Speakers, Thomas D. Cannon, Carl M. Dubinsky, Dr. E. O. Greer and Mrs. Kate Richards O'Hare.

The Citizens' Parkway Committee, in the closing days of the campaign, is making the fight personal on Isaac H. Lionberger, Adam Wackman, Henry W. Kolkschneider, Martin Shaughnessy and other anti-parkway leaders. The committee is not mining words in setting forth that the leaders of the opposition to the parkway are actuated by purely selfish motives.

It is being pointed out that while the principal leaders of the fight on the parkway themselves live in luxurious homes in the immediate vicinity of different parks, they are attempting to prevent park benefits being brought near to the homes of the poor people who live in the crowded tenement sections of the city.

In a speech before the Men's Club of the Grace M. E. Church at Skinner road and Waterman avenue last night, Thomas D. Cannon, one of the parkway speakers, paid particular attention to Lionberger and Wackman.

Case of Adam Wackman. Cannon declared that Wackman formerly lived at Seventeenth and Market streets in a building now occupied by the Red Feather saloon, but that he had since moved to Parkway place in the immediate vicinity of Forest Park. "In 1902 when the police department was trying to clean up the district around Union Station, it undertook to have the segregated district removed from Chestnut street," Cannon said. "Wackman appeared before the Police Board and asked to have these unfortunate women sent into the neighborhood south of Market street, in which he owned property, so that he could get increased rents for his property. He even suggested that he would tear down his wagon factory and put up houses to accommodate these people. That is the sort of a man Adam Wackman is. He is a worthy patriot working for the public good."

"Now, as to Lionberger. He owns several pieces of property in the district that will be assessed for benefits to build the parkway."

Lionberger's Tenant to Pay. "In 1906 he bought a piece of property on Market street for $25,000. He leased

City Block in Parkway District Owned by Isaac H. Lionberger and Devoted to Junk Piles—To Eliminate Such Eyesores Is One of the Purposes of the Parkway, Which Lionberger Opposes this property to tenants on a valuation of $250,000, and required the tenant to spend $10,000 in improving the property during the first four months.

"But more than that. He inserted in the lease a clause that the tenant was to pay all special and general taxes, so that if the parkway should be constructed the tenant of this particular property of Mr. Lionberger would have to pay the assessment for the parkway."

"Most of you people probably have noticed the Belmont Hotel at Fifteenth and Market streets. That is one of Mr. Lionberger's properties. And you doubtless also noticed that this was the home of the 805 saloon, which has a big sign on the front, reading: 'Best 5 and 10 cent drink of whiskey in St. Louis.'"

Standing in His Own Light. Cannon also called attention to the fact that Lionberger is the owner of the block of ground at Seventeenth, Eighteenth, Pine and Chestnut streets, which is now occupied by a negro arcade and a great mass of junk. He declared that Lionberger, by opposing the parkway, was standing in his own light as this property would become highly valuable for hotel purposes if the parkway should be built.

Cannon further declared that Lionberger was the author of the charter amendments of the old city charter under which assessments had been made for the opening of the cut-off from Locust street at Channing avenue. He said that in a recent speech, he had read a special tax bill for $500, which had been assessed against a woman owning property in that neighborhood, and had endeavored to show that this was the result of the operation of the special tax provisions of the new city charter. He declared that Lionberger had made misstatements of fact, and that the very provision of the old charter which he wrote was responsible for the tax bill of which he complained.

Gas Company Assessment. Cannon also declared that Lionberger, as attorney for the Laclede Gas Light Co., was responsible for the juggling of figures which enabled the company to escape with an assessment of only $12,500 for taxes, while, when the company wanted to issue $5,000,000 of bonds to build coke ovens, filed a sworn statement with the Public Service Commission, signed by Lionberger, that its property was worth $36,542,000. He declared that the statement for taxation was only one-third the amount of the statement for bond issue purposes and insisted that if the company really had assets worth $36,542,000 it ought to be required to pay taxes on that sum.

Cannon devoted most of his speech to a discussion of Lionberger and Wackman. Lionberger has been specially invited to attend the meeting to speak against the parkway, but he sent word that he could not keep the engagement. Cannon expressed regret that Lionberger was not present to hear what he had to say about him.

John H. Gundlach, former president of the City Council made a speech on city planning and exhibited lantern slides of the parkways and boulevards of European, South American and American cities. He contrasted the magnificent parkways and boulevards of Paris, Berlin, Dresden, Rio de Janeiro, Buenos Aires, Kansas City, Chicago and Boston with the streets and boulevards of St. Louis.

FIGHTING PARKWAY BECAUSE CITY JOBS ARE HARD TO GET

Republican Workers Want to Discredit Mayor, Who Backs the Efficiency System.

Angered by their inability to get city jobs through political pulls from the Efficiency Board, the Republican precinct workers in many wards are working energetically to defeat the parkway to bring discredit upon Mayor Kiel.

The Republican City Committee, at its meeting in the Odd Fellows Building last night, refused to vote an indorsement of the parkway proposition. Mayor Kiel had expected that at least 22 of the committee members would vote for the indorsement, but as soon as the question was brought up for discussion it was evident that a majority of the committee members were against the parkway.

The primary reason for the opposition is based upon the inability of the committee to get political jobs for the workers. Under the efficiency system, the jobs are presumed to be awarded by merit, instead of by political pull. The politicians have been demanding that Mayor Kiel override the Efficiency

Board and pass the jobs around among "the boys." The Mayor, however, has insisted upon the provisions of the charter with respect to the merit system being carried out to the letter.

The committee men say they are individually in favor of the parkway, or at least most of them do, but declare they are unable to control their precinct and block workers and the other "boys" who give political service in the wards. Some of the committee men who favor the parkway say they cannot afford to go around in their wards and try to get the people to vote for it.

One reason given for this inactivity by the committee men is that there is much lack of employment, and that small home owners do not feel, under present conditions, like voting for any proposition that might increase their taxes. They say the precinct workers, most of whom are now city job holders, are "sore" because the efficiency provisions of the charter have been so rigidly enforced.

The reason offered by the committee men for refusing to indorse the parkway was that no political question was involved. By defeating the parkway, the politicians see an opportunity to strike back at Mayor Kiel for his refusal to appoint an Efficiency Board that would throw down the bars and let the "boys" have all the jobs.

The Republican organization is made up principally of job holders. The committee men get jobs for other persons and the job holders in each ward generally form the precinct organization, which is known as the working body of the party. Except for the jobs, it would be difficult, the committee men say, to keep their party organization together.

Today Is Last Registration Day for Parkway Election

VOTERS who have moved since April 25, which was the last registration day, or who were sick on registration day, or more than 50 miles away from St. Louis, may register for the Parkway election at the Board of Election Commissioners' office in the city hall from 9 a. m. until 10 p. m. today.

It will be necessary to submit affidavits to prove illness or absence from the city. This will be the last chance for voters to qualify for the parkway election.

KANSAS CITY VOTES $4,655,000 BONDS FOR PUBLIC WORKS

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 2.—The voters of Kansas City, yesterday, by an overwhelming majority, directed a bond issue by the city of $4,655,000 for public improvements to keep the city in the front rank of the growing and progressive municipalities of the country. It was a victory for the people and by the people. For once party lines were obliterated, and men of all political beliefs stood shoulder to shoulder and with the greatest possible unanimity voted to make Kansas City a good place to live in.

Nineteen specific propositions were voted upon, and all of them carried. They included the establishment of traffic ways, improvement of parks, police and fire equipment and municipal corrections system.

Kansas City voted to expend $2,170,000 on the improvement and widening of its traffic way. Of this amount $700,000 will be spent on Union Station traffic outlets. The citizens were impressed with the necessity of insuring free traffic channels to the new terminal before vacant land now surrounding it should be occupied by costly buildings. The improvement plan includes an extension of the present plaza east to Grand avenue and the widening of the present "goose neck" where Broadway intersects the plaza on the west.

The 19 separate propositions, carried by the necessary two-thirds assent of the voters, follow:

Grading Station Hill Park	$100,000
Fire stations and fire equipment	125,000
General Hospital Improvements	125,000
Municipal Park Improvements	125,000
Sixth Street Traffic Way	400,000
Development and extension of the public traffic system	400,000
Police equipment	400,000
Traffic approaches to the Union	700,000
Garbage disposal	250,000
Police stations	125,000
Traffic approaches to the Twelfth	200,000
Street Viaduct	200,000
Improving Swine Park and other public parks	400,000
Public comfort stations	400,000
Constructing the Twenty-Third Street	25,000
Constructing the Chestnut Avenue Traffic Way	25,000
Twenty-third Street Subway under	15,000
Robert Williams Street	30,000
Widening New Brook Street	30,000
Constructing the Blue Valley sewer	500,000
Improving the channel and banks of the Blue River	100,000

There was no strife or contention among the voters. The vast majority were of one mind. They included the workmen, small property owners, business and professional men. In many precincts not a vote was cast against the bonds. There was no organized opposition to the bonds, and the few hundred who voted in the negative made no show of their dissent.

The expenditure of the money raised by the bond issue is to be supervised by five business men prominent in the city's affairs.

MEN AND MOTIVES BEHIND OPPOSITION TO THE PARKWAY

THE principal opposition to the Central Traffic Parkway, which will be voted on at a special election June 8, is centered in a small group of wealthy men, most of whom would have to pay an assessment on their property if the Parkway should be constructed. There are also some politicians fighting the Parkway to discredit Mayor Kiel because the Mayor insists on a strict enforcement of the efficiency provisions of the City Charter, which prevents the political spoilsman from controlling the municipal government.

The leader of the group of Parkway opponents is Isaac H. Lionberger, a wealthy lawyer, who lives at 37 Westmoreland place, within one block of Forest park. Lionberger's most intimate associates in their work of obstruction are Martin Shaughnessy, wholesale liquor dealer; Adam Wackman, a retired wagon maker, and Henry W. Kolkschneider, wealthy brewer, who has taken decided stands against nearly all progressive municipal measures.

Lionberger, Shaughnessy and Wackman own property in the district that would be assessed to help pay for the parkway, while Kolkschneider objects to municipal improvements, such as parks and breathing places for the children of the poor.

Lionberger, who is rated as a millionaire, owns the vacant block of property at Seventeenth, Eighteenth, Pine and Chestnut streets. He bought this property as a speculation. The only use to which this valuable tract of land is put by Lionberger, who is holding it for the development of the city to put an increased value into it, is to rent one corner of it for a negro saloon. The balance of the lot is covered with junk. The lot is one of the most unwholesome places in St. Louis.

Wackman is the most noisy of the parkway obstructionists. He forces his way into public meetings, where he is not invited, and insists on making anti-parkway demonstrations. Wackman, who made a fortune in the wagon making business, lives at 404 Parkway place, within a block of Forest Park.

Owens Property Near Market. He owns several large pieces of property between Market street and the Mill Creek Valley. Several years ago Wackman appeared before the Board of Police Commissioners while it had under consideration a proposition to force the women of the segregated district to move from Chestnut street, and requested the board to send the women into the district south of Market street, where he owned property. His idea was that the owners of property in that district would be able to get increased rentals from their holdings by renting them to the women. This demand was made in the face of the fact that there was then, and is now, a law against the

What Kolkschneider Opposes. As it takes five years to complete the process of naturalization, Kolkschneider will not become a full citizen until October. In a recent interview with a Post-Dispatch reporter he declared his outspoken opposition.

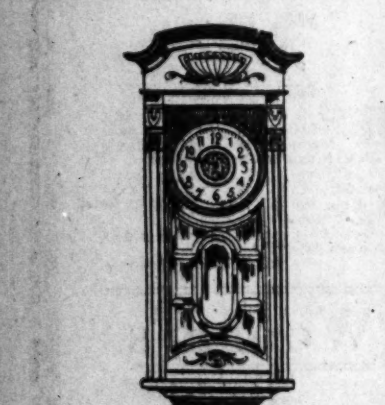

To any further extension of parks, playgrounds and breathing places for the people of St. Louis, declaring that St. Louis had already too many such recreation grounds.

To the courts dealing leniently with children offenders, charged with petty crimes, declaring that they should be punished by imprisonment.

To the system of paroling prisoners to give them another chance to make good in the battle of life, asserting that they ought to be dealt with severely.

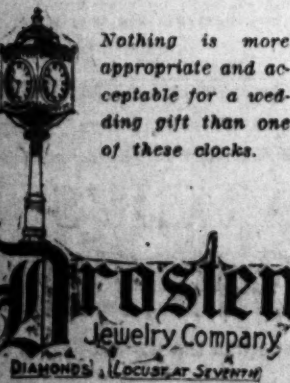

Kolkschneider organized the Taxpayers' Protective Federation to fight city improvements. He protests against improvements of all kinds because, as a citizen, he does not want to have to pay taxes for beautifying the city in which he has made a large fortune. He was one of the most active opponents.

Sanatogen ENDORSED BY OVER 21,000 PHYSICIANS

"Why am I slowing down?"

—and then you sit and wonder why—when the wonder is that you have kept the pace so long. For the rush of business with its countless worries falls so heavily on a man's nervous system.

Perhaps you have slowed down a little from exhaustion of the system's forces. But once the nerves have been restored to vigor and the whole system revived, recharged with a new store of energy, the old-time endurance, the old-time capacity to accomplish, will return.

And it is in giving this welcome help to the overworked nerves that Sanatogen has won so many friends. Both a food and a tonic, Sanatogen feeds and rebuilds the impoverished cells, and tunes up the system, infusing new strength into blood and tissues.

Hon. Wm. C. Adams, Chairman Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce, U. S. Senate, Washington, D. C., writes: "I have found Sanatogen very satisfactory. It has a direct effect on the stomach and digestion is most pleasant and it is very valuable to restore wasted energies and to compose the nerves in cases of long-continued effort and exhaustion."

Sir Gilbert Parker, M. P., the eminent novelist-statesman, writes from London: "Sanatogen is a most valuable tonic, feeding the nerves, increasing the energy, and giving fresh vigor to the overworked body and mind."

And scores of other famous people, leaders in the world's activities, have written even stronger letters than these. So when you think of this, and the letters of commendation from more than 21,000 doctors, endorsing Sanatogen—surely you cannot deny yourself such welcome and undoubted help!

Sanatogen is sold by good druggists everywhere in three sizes, from $1.00 up. Grand Prize, International Congress of Medicine, London, 1913.

Constant Headache Is a Warning From Within of Needed Eye Attention

The eye is the most precious of nature's gifts. Good eyesight is a faculty to be cherished. Few, if any, have perfect vision, as the eye is subject to many abnormalities. Constant headache is possibly the most certain indication of eye-weakness, as it is a result of eye-strain, and should be taken as a true warning from within of the need of glasses.

Your eyes may not trouble you greatly all of the time and you may be able to read the finest print with little effort, but if your eyes and head ache considerably at times you should consult an optometrist as soon as possible, as a little precaution now will be of untold value to you in the years to come.

Oliver Abel, an expert optometrist, has had more than nineteen years' experience in studying the eye and fitting lenses, and his knowledge well fits him to tell you if glasses are needed in your particular case.

Mr. Abel's optical parlors are located on the fourth floor of the Charleston Building, corner of Sixth and Olive streets. He is equipped with every scientific instrument necessary in the skillful study of eye conditions. Mr. Abel will be pleased to have you call and consult him, and if you do not need glasses he will tell you.—Adv.

Men and Motives in Fight Against Parkway Proposal of the new charter, when it was submitted to the voters last year.

These three men, Lionberger, Kolkschneider and Wackman, with Martin Shaughnessy, wealthy liquor dealer, who lives in Washington terrace, four blocks from Forest Park, are leading the fight against the parkway. Their opposition, if successful, will deny thousands of people in a crowded section of the city the delights and benefits of a park near home, by making it impossible to build a parkway extending from Twelfth street to Grand avenue. The parkway, as it will be designed, if constructed, will provide numerous small parks and breathing places for the poor people of the crowded section of the city.

The principal argument advanced by the Lionberger-Kolkschneider-Wackman-Shaughnessy combination against the parkway is that the special tax system, under which a portion of the cost of the improvement would be paid, is unfair.

Their Estimates Too High.

All of their arguments are based upon the assumption that the parkway would cost not less than $10,000,000. On this basis they have made estimates calculated to frighten property owners into voting against the parkway.

The property in the 21 blocks which will be condemned for the parkway has an assessed valuation of $4,100,000. It was assessed at two-thirds of its actual value, and is therefore worth approximately $6,000,000. It is estimated that there would be salvage enough from the condemned buildings to pay for the paving of the parkway, so that practically all of the expense of the improvement would be the cost of the land.

The Lionberger-Kolkschneider-Wackman-Shaughnessy combination bases all of its arguments on the theory that the entire cost of the parkway will be assessed against property owners in the immediate vicinity of the improvement, and that their property would be confiscated.

It is not anticipated that the entire cost of the improvement would be shouldered upon the property owners in a benefit district to be laid out by commissioners appointed by the Circuit Court. It may be that they will be required to pay only one-third or one-half the cost—probably not more than $1,000,000 or $3,000,000, and the balance would be assessed against the city at large.

The parkway opponents also attempt to show that there will be a blanket assessment against all lots on the same basis, and have attempted to prove that this would amount to $1023 for each 25-foot lot. Mayor Kiel has repeatedly stated that if it should be found that the parkway would cost more than $10,000,000, it would not be constructed, but the parkway opponents continue to base all their estimates on a $10,000,000 basis.

The commissioners, under the new charter, will fix the amount of tax against property owners in the benefit district according to the benefits that will be derived by the owner of each piece of property.

ARCHITECT OFFERS TO MAKE SPEECHES FOR THE PARKWAY

Tom P. Barnett, architect, has notified the Citizens' Parkway Committee that he is ready to make public talk in its behalf in the parkway, and to refute the anti-parkway arguments of some of his fellow architects.

Barnett was chairman of a City Plan Committee appointed by the local chapter of the Architects' Institute. He disputes the assertion of T. C. Young and other architects, that the parkway, as designed, will not fit into a general street plan, and that the Union Station portion will not form an adequate gateway for the city.

"It should be remembered," Barnett told a Post-Dispatch reporter today, "that all the present parkway plans are only tentative. The only thing definitely determined is the amount of ground to be used. The method of treatment is still to be chosen.

Possibilities Inspiring.

"The parkway tract is three miles long and 80 feet wide. The possibilities of such a tract are inspiring, and any architect, who says that he could not develop a tract of that size, is not speaking very highly of his own ability.

"The triple roadway plan, as it has been outlined, is only a tentative one. As soon as the parkway ordinance is ratified by the people, a St. Louis architect should be commissioned to work out a design.

"The Union Station plaza will certainly deserve the best possible treatment. To provide this gateway for the city and to give visitors a new and favorable view of the city, will in itself, be worth to St. Louis all that the entire parkway costs.

"The parkway scheme is such a big and meritorious one that, if St. Louis does nothing more for the next 50 years than to complete the parkway properly the city will have placed itself in the matter of civic pride and achievement, in the first place among American cities."

Reasons for the Parkway.

Barnett has prepared a list of reasons for supporting the parkway which, in addition to those just given, include the following:

It will give a new view of and new surroundings to the city hall and Municipal Court Building—the former, in Barnett's opinion, one of the handsomest public structures in America.

It will give Central St. Louis a breathing place for health and recreation.

It will enhance property values throughout the city by removing the old and disfiguring buildings which now occupy the space.

It will give work in the wreckage of this area to thousands of men.

It will stimulate the real estate market, and the business building contractors and the building trades, and will employ a vast number of labor union members in the erection of new buildings, to house the residents and business now in the parkway strip.

It is large enough in its scope, and is in every way suited, to add to and connect with any other city development or improvement that may be suggested in future years.

It will furnish, in the tract bordering the parkway, a site for the erection of fireproof apartments for working men's families.

Man Says He Was Shot From Ambush

Patrick Fogarty, 34 years old, of 236 Dickson street, had a bullet wound in his left thigh treated at the central dispensary last night. He told the police he was fired upon from ambush as he was walking along Twenty-second street between Cass avenue and Dickson street. He was held at the Dayton street station for investigation.

DEFENDS COURSE OF ARCHITECTS IN FIGHT ON PARKWAY

T. C. Young Tells Why Objections to Project Were Made at Late Date.

T. C. Young, an architect, sent to the newspapers yesterday the following communication, relating to the anti-Parkway document published over the signature of 22 members of the St. Louis chapter, American Institute of Architects:

"St. Louis, June 1.—The Sunday Post-Dispatch, in a lengthy article concerning the disapproval of the parkway scheme by the St. Louis chapter, A. I. A., states: 'The public is entitled to know why these objections . . . were not made in November or December, 1914, and the early months of this year.' Will you, therefore, kindly publish the following information:

"The parkway scheme had no official standing prior to the passage of the city ordinance. No architectural assistance had previously been accepted or desired. 'In February, a committee of the Civic League, with a view to stimulate public interest in city planning, attempted to secure a traveling exhibit prepared by the City Planning Bureau of New York, but it was found impossible to raise the $300 necessary for this purpose.

"About March 1 the St. Louis Chapter was requested to co-operate with the league and provide a 'made-in-St. Louis' substitute for this exhibit, which had to be ready for the opening set for April 15. 'The chapter responded immediately. Rooms were secured in the Chemical Building, where work was carried on night and day, as well as in many private offices. Many members freely gave their personal services, the time of their employees and contributed a considerable sum of money for this purpose. Many meetings were held for consultation and discussion.

"Future St. Louis Exhibit."
"The work resulted in the production, at no expense to the city, of the 'Future St. Louis Exhibit,' which was installed for a time in the city hall rotunda. The value of this work, contributed by the architects at customary rates, has been estimated by disinterested outside parties at upwards of $5000. Previously the architects had given the matter only such consideration as might interest a citizen, and on March 1 there was no opposition to the parkway, as most of the men believed it could somehow be 'worked into shape.'

"As the city had given no consideration to this phase of the subject, it was thought best to develop a general street plan, with a view to work the parkway design into such a plan in a logical manner. The six weeks of consultation, work and co-operative study by all the architects convinced them that the parkway scheme was unnecessary and would serve the purposes as assisted by its advocates. This verdict was unanimous, so far as the active members were concerned. Thereupon a committee waited on Mayor Kiel with the information. The Mayor expressed himself as surprised and regretful at the findings of the architects.

"At the next regular meeting of the chapter it was intimated that the Mayor would expect the chapter to approve the parkway scheme on patriotic grounds, notwithstanding their expressed objections. As ethical standards would be violated by issuing a false opinion the chapter promptly passed the resolution disapproving the parkway.

Explanation of Their Course.
"The propriety of taking further action was seriously debated. Having reached a conclusion, it seemed to many to be a duty to attempt to prevent what we believe to be a mistake and in time to come to that committed in building the municipal bridge without approach at either end. There was some hesitation as it was realized that this course would give occasion to much undesirable abuse. It was subsequently found that the attitude of the architects was persistently misrepresented, one of the papers stating, editorially, 'They approve it.' Therefore, the chapter considered it advisable to publish the reasons for disapproval, and the statement was prepared and signed at the earliest possible moment.

"It is not the desire of the chapter to oppose public improvements, which we all know to be absolutely necessary and which we have urged for many years. It is their belief that the means for effecting this, as proposed in the parkway scheme, are entirely ineffectual and inadequate, but that, with a little study and work, a scheme may be developed which will be effective, as may be easily demonstrated even to the satisfaction of the present advocates of the parkway scheme, and with but little loss of time.

"Should the city be unable or unwilling to provide the means for obtaining an effective solution of its city planning problems, the Chapter of Architects may be relied upon to do its full share in any organized movement to that end. We stand ready, contrary to present example, to assign reasons for any course we may advocate, and will invite criticism and assistance from any source, including the public.

"We trust that this may afford the desired public information and show as well that the charges made against this chapter are unfounded."

AGAINST SUNDAY FUNERALS

Alton Cemetery Board Cuts Height of Graves to 2 Feet.
The Alton Cemetery Board, yesterday, in revising a code of cemetery rules that was more than 70 years old, decided to discourage the custom of Sunday funerals. The board members believe week-day funerals are preferable. No more high mounds over graves will be permitted, a maximum height of three inches being fixed for mounds. Only one marker can be used for each grave, and the markers must not be more than 24 inches in height.

542 DRIVERS OF VEHICLES BROUGHT INTO ONE COURT

Judge Hogan Rebukes Police for Bringing So Many Defendants Before Him at Once.

In the two St. Louis police courts today, 540 chauffeurs and drivers arrested in the annual police roundup for not having vehicle licenses were called for trial. There were 542 in Judge Hogan's court and 198 in Judge Sanders' court. Judge Hogan from the bench rebuked the police for bringing so many of these cases into his court in one day. "This should never have occurred," he said, as he looked over the crowded courtroom. "The police could have spread these arrests over several days. They should not bring in so many defendants at one time. It would be all right to arrest 150 drivers in a day."

Judge Hogan's courtroom was not large enough to hold the defendants. Many of them were in the corridors. Deputy Marshals were stationed in the hall to call the names of those defendants who could not get into the room.

License Cases Tried First. The docket was so crowded that Judge Hogan did not follow the usual custom of trying first the prisoners who had been held all night on other charges. They remained in the cage until the vehicle license cases had been disposed of. Judge Hogan announced that all of those charged with not having licenses would be discharged on payment of $1 costs. Those who had obtained licenses after being arrested were permitted to pay the costs at once. The others were told their cases would be continued and that they would be released on payment of costs when they could show they had obtained licenses.

Sanders Does Likewise. The Judge vacated the bench and remained out of the courtroom while clerks and deputies were collecting the costs.

Judge Sanders also released all defendants who showed they had obtained licenses and paid $2 costs. He also continued the other cases with the same proviso as that made by Judge Hogan.

Vehicles of every character, ranging from city garbage wagons to high-priced automobiles surrounded the Municipal Court building while the cases were being disposed of.

CHAIN-LETTER FRANK APPEAL

Cornelius P. Curran Aids in Effort for Commutation.

A chain letter in behalf of Leo Frank asking that letters be sent to the Governor of Georgia has been started by Cornelius P. Curran, president of the Con P. Curran Printing Co. One of the letters was received today by D. C. Hartwell, chief clerk in the office of the County Clerk. In addition to writing to the Governor, Hartwell was asked to write to five friends and ask them to join in the chain letter.

The writers are asked to urge the Governor to grant Frank either a pardon or commutation of sentence. Those receiving the letters are asked to write at once.

Series of Thrift Talks From the Pens of Prominent Men.

The St. Louis Union Bank begins in the columns of the Post-Dispatch today a series of articles on the value of saving written by men of prominence in the commercial and business world. These talks obtained by the St. Louis Union Bank are full of human interest and are characteristic of the men who write them. They embrace the very best kind of advice and each one brings out in strong relief the great value of acquiring the saving habit, which is admittedly the only sure way to wealth. The St. Louis Union Bank obtained these talks from the prominent business and professional men in the Post-Dispatch will include talks on the value of thrift from leading St. Louisans.

LAWYER LOCKED IN BUILDING

J. C. Kiskaddon of Clayton Has to Break Door to Get Out.

J. C. Kiskaddon, 78 years old, one of the oldest members of the bar in Missouri, was obliged to smash a door last night to get out of the Colonial Building in Clayton, where he has his office.

He was reading there until after 10 o'clock and when he attempted to leave he found the outer door locked. He first attempted to telephone to some of his friends, but could get no answer to his calls. He finally smashed his way through a thick plate glass panel in the door.

CUPID'S BUSINESS SHOWS BOOM

Cupid's business in St. Louis apparently is unaffected by the war. Thirty-four more couples applied for marriage licenses in St. Louis yesterday than on June 1, 1914. The count then was 63 issued at the city hall against 97 yesterday.

For the second day in 1914, 43 licenses were issued, while 17 couples applied up until noon today.

JOHN WANAMAKER Says:-

"Saving is a habit which develops character, begets thrift, and insures provision for old age."

John Wanamaker

Are you providing for old age and the proverbial rainy day? Their coming is as sure as tax-paying time and as sure as the need of money to pay the taxes.

Don't ignore the advice of a successful business man like Mr. Wanamaker. Saving a little money every day will enable you to "bridge" rainy days—enjoy the evening of life—prevent you and your family from becoming subjects of charity. This institution will help you save—pay you interest on your deposits—give you valuable advice when you get ready to invest your savings. $1.00 starts an account.

CITY TO BE HEARD ON ELIMINATION OF STREET CAR STOPS

State Commission Will Take Its Attitude Into Consideration in Passing Upon Plan.

The United Railways plan to eliminate 68 so-called "useless stops" on its system, thus enabling it to shorten its running schedules from four to five minutes on each line, will be considered by the State Public Utilities Commission after a public hearing at which the city will be given an opportunity either to approve or object to the plan. Thus far a date has not been set for the hearing. The commissioners, at Jefferson City today, notified the city that it had been granted permission to intervene in the case as an interested party. This notice gives the city the right to express its opinion on the proposed changes. The city's attitude probably will be announced by the Board of Public Service. Engineer Butts of the City Board of Public Service and Chief Engineer Harrop of the State Utilities Commission, at the invitation of the United Railways already have made an inspection in connection with the proposed car-stop changes and have given their individual approval.

If the commission approves the United Railways' plans, the company, when notified, will begin immediately to place "stop" and "no-stop" signs on every corner in St. Louis. The "cars stop here" signs will be red, and the "cars do not stop here" signs will be blue, so that they will be readily distinguishable about a block away.

Stops 100 Feet From Each Other.
The number of so-called "useless stops" vary from 9 to 80 on each line, depending upon the length of the line and the territory traversed. At present some stops are within 100 feet of each other. For example, two such stops, on the Olive line, are at Spring avenue east and Spring avenue west, and at Academy walk and Academy avenue.

The company's petition states that the elimination of useless stops will mean a saving of time for all passengers, a saving of power and a saving of wear and tear on rolling stock. The complete list of streets, designated by the United Railways as "useless stops" and the total number of "useless stops" on each line, follow:

OLIVE-UNIVERSITY line: Nineteenth, Twenty-second, Leffingwell, Garrison, Leonard, Westhall, Culver way, Westminster, stop, Waterman, stop, Waterman, stop, Westgate, 14.

ODO-RO-NO

A Perspiration Corrective and Deodorant

Corrects and relieves extreme perspiration of the armpits, feet, hands or neck, without affecting the perspiration of any other part of the body.

Two applications a week will keep these parts comfortably and naturally dry and absolutely odorless. Daily baths do not lessen the effect.

Women who use ODO-RO-NO need never bother with dress shields—they become unnecessary. Men find it particularly useful for damp, perspiring feet and hands and to prevent wilted collars. Unscented, harmless, easily applied.

Get your bottle of ODO-RO-NO today. See how quickly it does away with all perspiration troubles. 25c. 50c and $1.00. Six times as much for $1.00 as for 25c. At all department and drug stores—or by mail postpaid.

BRIDE REFERS TO LESCHINSKY AS 'EXCESS BAGGAGE'

Testifies in Replevin Suit to Recover Automobile From Husband, the "Count."

Mrs. Irene Sanford Leschinsky, testifying in her replevin suit to recover an automobile from her husband, "Count"
Leon J. Leschinsky, yesterday told how, before her marriage to Leschinsky, six months ago, she gave him money with which to pay alimony to his divorced wife. In the course of her testimony she referred to Leschinsky as "excess baggage."

Mrs. Leschinsky's deposition was taken in the office of Clarence T. Case, an attorney in the Third National Bank Building.

When his wife called him "excess baggage" he merely shrugged his shoulders and smiled.

Mrs. Leschinsky testified that, last July, before Leschinsky's former wife obtained a divorce, she gave Leschinsky 50 shares of Bell Telephone Co. stock, with the understanding that he was to sell it and reinvest the money for her.

HAVE BEAUTIFUL HAIR

You may have the most beautiful hair, long, thick, soft and glossy, by using a home-made tonic made from one-half ounce Concentrated Higer-wand Powder, and one pint soft, clear water. This simple mixture applied to the scalp and strands once or twice daily, develops the wonderfully short time an abundant growth of healthy hair. It is the most wonderful preparation known for the hair, and never fails to produce results.

It doesn't have any oil in it—
it makes the hair sticky or gummy; and is free from alcohol and cheap perfumes found in most hair tonics now in the market.

It is a very inexpensive tonic, and you'll be charmed with the wonderful change that will come over your hair after a few treatments.

Start using it at once to get quick results. Well-stocked drug stores, hairdressing parlors, and—ADVERTISING

F. D. WOODLOCK, A GRAIN BROKER, KILLS HIMSELF

Son and Daughter Find Body When They Return Home From Show.

Frank D. Woodlock, 57 years old, grain broker and member of the Merchants' Exchange, shot and killed himself while alone in his home at 5309 Berlin avenue, last night.

Since the death of his wife a year and a half ago, Woodlock had been melancholy. For more than a month he had been unable to attend to his business and this had led to financial losses.

Woodlock's daughter, Mrs. Edward Hummert, of 5 Beverly place, and his son, Frank V. Woodlock, went to a picture show. They asked him to accompany them, but he declined, saying he was too nervous to sit still.

When they returned about 10:30 p. m., they found Woodlock dead in a chair. There was a bullet wound in his temple and a revolver was in his right hand. No note of explanation was found.

Woodlock had been a member of the Merchants' Exchange about thirty years. At one time he was president of the Woodlock & Gessler Grain Co. In recent years he had operated alone, with an office in room 314 Chamber of Commerce Building.

Frank V. Woodlock told reporters that his father recently had lost money in business, but that he did not believe these financial reverses caused him to kill himself.

Grief over the death of his wife frequently had resulted in spells of extreme nervousness, the son said, and Woodlock frequently had told members of his family that he had nothing left to live for.

The Drew residence at 2535 Lindell boulevard will be the scene of one of the most notable weddings of the season when Miss Margaret Drew, fourth daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Francis A. Drew, and Harry Burgoyne Wilson will be married at 5:30 o'clock.

The ceremony will be performed in the drawing room, from which the broad staircase in the hall can be seen, and the bridal procession will be in view from the time it starts down the steps until it reaches the improvised altar in the drawing room.

The balustrade will be wreathed in smilax and white blossoms. The walls of the drawing room will be hung with green, studded with white blossoms.

The Rev. Father O'Boyle, S. J., will officiate.

The bride will wear a gown of white satin with several full overskirts of tulle edged with pearls. The bodice, which is high-waisted, will be almost entirely of old rose point lace which belonged to the bride's mother, and from the shoulders in the back will be a court train of white satin. Her veil will be of tulle, simply arranged, and she will carry a shower bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley.

Mrs. Ephron Catlin Jr., the bride's sister, will be her matron of honor, and Miss Jane Taylor will be her bridesmaid.

Both attendants will wear frocks of pale green, picture hats of white lace and will carry bouquets of white blossoms.

Mr. Wilson will have Reid Kilpatrick of New York for his best man, and the groomsmen will be Lewis D. Dwyer Jr., Russell E. Gardner Jr. and Robert Edward Jolley.

Mrs. Harold Leavitt Brown, who was Miss Elizabeth Drew, and who has presided over the home since Mr. and Mrs. Drew's death several years ago, and Mrs. L. Vaughan Clark, the bridegroom's mother, will receive the guests, who will be limited to the nearest relatives and friends.

The bride made her debut three winters ago, after finishing school at the Sacred Heart Convent at Ostend, Belgium, which had been moved there from Paris. She was one of the debutantes chosen for the imperial balls that winter, and has been one of the most admired girls in the fashionable set. She returned but a short time ago from a visit to her sister, Mrs. James H. Platt, who was Miss Ann Drew, who has been residing in San Francisco since her marriage, more than a year ago.

Among the bride's gifts, which are said to be unusually handsome, is a beautiful plaque of diamonds and sapphires which Mrs. Clark gave her and a large circle of diamonds, the bridegroom's present, and which the bride will wear.

The bridegroom came here from New York about eight years ago with his mother, who was Miss Grace Winckley, a member of an old New England family, and whose first marriage was to an Englishman.

After their return from the wedding trip Mr. Wilson and his bride will make their home here.

Mrs. Charles Norman Jones of 4623 Berlin avenue will depart about the middle of June for Hyannisport, Mass., to spend the summer.

Mrs. Thomas M. Pierce of 4550 McPherson avenue and her two sons, Master Thomas M. Jr. and Julius Walsh Pierce, will go to Seawane, Tenn., July 1, where Mrs. Pierce has taken a house for the summer.

Miss Harriette Krause, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Krause of 449 Forest Park boulevard, will give a linen shower Friday afternoon from 4 to 6 o'clock in honor of Miss Charlotte Boeckeler, whose marriage to Burrell O. Leftwich will take place June 23.

On June 10 Miss Clara Stock, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Stock of 517 Florissant avenue, will be married to John C. Maguire, son of Mr. and Mrs. William E. Maguire of 4767 Hammett place. The ceremony will be performed at the Perpetual Help Church, Twenty-eighth and Linden streets, by the Rev. Father Joseph Wentker. After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Maguire will go to Chicago and will take a lake trip as a honeymoon, after which they will return to St. Louis, where they will make their home.

Mr. and Mrs. Alexander B. Goldberg of Memphis, Tenn., will be at home this evening at 383 Maryville avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Krause of 449 Forest Park boulevard will give a garden party June 11 for the benefit of the Young People's Society of the Second Presbyterian Church.

Mrs. J. J. Horan of 833 Waterman avenue, Parkview, entertained four tables of bridge at Glen Echo Tuesday afternoon.

The marriage of Miss Marie Alice Wimmer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Wimmer, and Earl Bliss Morgan will be celebrated at 7:30 o'clock this evening, at the home of the bride's parents, 5815 Horton place.

The bride will have Miss Grace Emerson for her maid of honor, and Tonald Morgan will be best man. After the ceremony there will be a reception.

UNSIGHTLY PIMPLES ALL OVER FACE

Burning and Itching. Caused Much Loss of Sleep. Broke Out Over Body Also. Two Cakes Cuticura Soap and One Box Ointment Healed. Not a Scar Left.

808 N. 4th St., Springfield, Ill.—"Several months ago I was troubled with pimples all over my face. The breaking out was unsightly and caused much itching which irritated the pimples. They caused me to lose much sleep for they itched all night long. They disfigured me while they lasted. My face was very sore. The pimples then broke out all over my body also. My clothes felt uncomfortable. One day I heard about Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I used two cakes of Cuticura Soap and a box of Cuticura Ointment, and was healed, and not a scar was left." (Signed) Carlyle C. Bryan, October 30, '14. In the care of baby's skin and hair, Cuticura Soap is the mother's favorite. Its gentle emollient properties are usually sufficient to allay minor irritations and promote skin and hair health generally.

Inseparable for Safety

Beware of bichloride of mercury. One tiny tablet could POISON a family. But a 25c box of makes two gallons of standard sanitary solution that is absolutely HARMLESS.

Tyree's Antiseptic Powder

Health, comfort, cleanliness demand an antiseptic; but SAFETY warns against the use of bichloride of mercury, carbolic acid, etc.

TYREE'S ANTISEPTIC POWDER will serve the same legitimate purposes better; without risking your life, or destroying the membranes and tissues. An ideal douche; an invigorating tonic in the bath; a cure for aching feet. Prevents infection from whatever cause. Allays irritation.

166.3 Miles on Low Gear Without a Stop, in 11 Hours and 7 Minutes

On Dec. 4, 1914, the Haynes, America's Greatest "Light Six" five-passenger touring car, traveled 166.3 miles on low gear between Newark, New Jersey, and the Delaware Gap, and return, through roads hub-deep with mud, and over mountain grades, without a single stop of the motor.

THE HAYNES
America's Greatest "Light Six"

is the only water cooled car to ever make such a test.

Not a single drop of water was added to the cooling system at any time. The water level in the radiator was only one-quarter of an inch lower at the end of the run than at the start. The water temperature averaged 120 degrees.

This is only one of the many reasons why you should investigate the Haynes.

WOMEN SYMPHONY WORKERS TO MEET THIS AFTERNOON

Plans Will Be Devised to Continue Efforts of Committee All Summer.

The first general meeting of the newly organized Women's Committee of the St. Louis Symphony Society will be held this afternoon at Cicardi's.

The meeting was called by Mrs. Breckinridge Jones, the president of the Women's Committee, to devise plans for the continuance of the committee's work through the summer.

There are about 800 members of the Women's Committee. Any woman who has subscribed for a seat to next season's symphony concerts, or who has contributed to the guaranty fund, is, for that reason, a member of the Women's Committee. Membership is free to all of these, but is not obtainable otherwise.

Post-Dispatch Symphony Symposium Printed by Musical Journal.

"Musical America," one of the two leading music journals of the country, in its issue of May 29, devotes its principal editorial to praising the Post-Dispatch for having given a page, on May 12, to the symphony society's campaign for a $50,000 guaranty fund for next season.

The editorial follows: "Most people have their private or public grudges against the daily press. The symphony-loving world of St. Louis, however, will feel nothing but gratitude toward the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, which, in the issue of May 12, gave practically a whole page to a symposium upon the matter of gaining added support for the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra in its next season."

"The Symphony Society, which rejoices in the fact of a comparatively small deficit after its last season, wishes and needs to increase the size of the orchestra, and makes an appeal to the citizens for an increased guaranty fund for the future."

"The page of the Post-Dispatch in question is brilliant with interest and enlightenment, with engaging variety in points of view upon the orchestral situation. The society, in the first place, makes its appeal and provides a subscription blank to be filled out. The paper itself gives the news of the situation in detail."

"The representative of a booking agency tells vividly of the opportunity St. Louis is missing in not sending its orchestra sufficiently out into the field offered by citizens of the Middle West. The Archbishop of St. Louis commends the spiritual influence of music. A local and famous brewer speaks for the orchestra as an improvement and beautification of the city. The rabbi of Temple Israel pleads for a wisely gathered democratic support. The conductor of the orchestra describes technically the needs of the orchestra and urges a longer season. A prominent citizen, in a spontaneous and racy style, speaks of the refreshing influence of orchestral music upon the toll-worn worker. News is given of the woman's auxiliary to the Symphony Society, with its purpose in assisting to raise the guaranty fund."

"All this is practical, progressive, and very much to the point. It represents the spirit in which every city should go about securing the establishment and advancing the standard of its symphonic music. And it represents the good-will with which the press everywhere is certain to respond to the artistic ambition of communities when they resolve upon definite forward action."

"The Symphony Society will gain its required guarantee, the city will make itself a model in methods of procedure, and the press will perform generously one of the most admirable services within its power."

Carroll, 705 Olive street, adjuter. Losses by fire and accident given special attention.

COL. BEVERLY C. STEVENS JR. INDICTMENT NOLLE PROSSO

Clayton Man Had Been Accused With His Uncle in a False Pretense Case.

Prosecuting Attorney Richard F. Ralph of Clayton entered a nolle pro in the case of the State vs. Col. Beverly C. Stevens Jr., jointly indicted with his uncle, Beverly C. Stevens, Dec. 26, 1914, as accessory on a false pretense charge.

The case was nolle prossed for two reasons: First, the word "did" was left out of the false pretense indictment, as in the case of others Stevens' indictments and, second, according to a deposition filed today by H. W. Karrenbrock, former cashier of the Lemay Ferry Bank, on the Lemay Ferry road, the prosecuting witness, the testimony in the trial would not have sustained the charge in the indictment.

Karrenbrock alleged that B. C. Stevens Jr., in November, 1913, brought a $3000 deed of trust to the bank, and took in exchange a $2500 deed of trust. Karrenbrock alleged that the $2500 deed of trust left by Stevens proved worthless. In his deposition he stated that Beverly C. Stevens Jr. was not present when the transaction occurred.

This is the third time that indictments against B. C. Stevens Jr. have been dismissed because of the omission of the word "did" in the indictment. This leaves only one indictment against B. C. Stevens Jr., and in that one he is indicted jointly with Beverly C. Stevens Sr., on a charge of embezzlement.

COCOANUT OIL FINE FOR WASHING HAIR

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, the less soap you use the better.

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle and is very harmful. Just plain mulified coconut oil (which is pure and entirely greaseless), is much better than soap or anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in. One or two tea-spoonfuls will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanses the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily, and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulified coconut oil at most any drug store. It is very cheap, and a few ounces is enough to last everyone in the family for months.—ADV.

DIVORCE FOR MRS. P. J. SHERIDAN

She Alleged Husband Once Threw a Chair at Her.

A divorce was granted to Mrs. Cecile Foster-Sheridan from Philip J. Sheridan, a railroad clerk, of 2966 Russell avenue, by Judge Anderson, yesterday. They were married Jan. 14, 1914, about a year after she had obtained a divorce from James M. Foster, a realty dealer. She got $5000 alimony from her first husband, but did not ask for alimony from the second one.

Mrs. Sheridan alleged that Sheridan threatened her and last July 4 threw a chair at her. The Fosters lived at 450 South Broadway, in what has been called "Castle Meyer." This was the home of Foster's mother.

Baseball Kills Scorer. WILKES-BARRE, Pa., June 2.—A foul ball struck Victor E. Craig, 36, of West Pittston on the head yesterday when he was keeping score at a game of baseball between two Sunday school teams. Soon after he reached his home he died from a fractured skull.

RUMSEY CHARGED WITH FAVORING 'VICIOUS ELEMENT'

Alliance Says Excise Commissioner Makes Unjust Rulings and Disregards Precedent.

A formal protest drafted yesterday by the Evangelical Alliance, asking Gov. Major either to remove Excise Commissioner Rumsey or compel him to alter his official conduct, states that Col. Rumsey has created an impression in St. Louis that his policy is in favor of the wide open town, with the administration of his office "under the influence of the brewers, saloon keepers and vicious element."

Four other reasons for the protest against Commissioner Rumsey were set forth as follows:

1. The remonstrators complain of unjust and illegal rulings of the present incumbent in the Excise Office.

2. He disregards precedents laid down by his predecessor, whose interpretations have been generally accepted as conducive to the moral welfare of the city.

3. Apparently his rulings and constructions of the law are arbitrary and in favor of the saloon element.

4. As regards questionable female characters frequenting and operating from certain notorious cafes, he rules that such matters are wholly within the province of the police and do not concern his office, and as a result certain cafes which had been suppressed under the former Commissioner have been reopened to these women by the present incumbent.

Protest Signed by Pastors. The protest was drafted by the Legislative Committee of the Evangelical Alliance, after two lengthy sessions in the Church Federation offices in the New Bank of Commerce Building. It was signed by the Rev. John L. Brandt, the Rev. E. J. Clarke, the Rev. E. J. Kulp and the Rev. Claude E. Ames. Before it is forwarded to Gov. Major it will be presented, for signatures, to the Rev. S. H. Woodrow, the Rev. S. E. Ewins and the Rev. F. W. Russell, the other members of the Legislative Committee.

It is stated the protest represents the sentiment of the ministry of the Evangelical churches of St. Louis and its suburbs, and was drafted in accordance with specific instructions from the Church Federation.

The Legislative Committee set forth that it visited the excise office and conferred with Commissioner Rumsey, and that it heard the statements of persons who had appeared before Commissioner Rumsey with remonstrances, as to their treatment at the hands of the commissioner and their being subjected to his arbitrary rulings.

Willing to Specify Cases. The committee reminds Gov. Major that the Evangelical Alliance appealed to the State to defeat the home-rule law, which would have taken the power of excise appointment from the Governor, and states that the churchmen of St. Louis hold the Governor in a degree responsible for the rulings and actions of his appointees.

Dr. Brandt said if Gov. Major wishes to hear specific cases in which Col. Rumsey's action in criticized, the committee will gladly accommodate him.

Commissioner Rumsey, besides holding the excise post, is a Colonel on Gov. Major's personal staff and usually entertains the Governor at his home, 5235 Westminster place, when the Governor visits St. Louis.

Herding place for big guys

Walk down the main avenue of Universal City any day and you're liable to bump into Gen. Grant, Phil. Sheridan or Henry Clay. You're apt to see Christopher Columbus or Rip Van Winkle sitting on a doorstep smoking a Conch cigar. It wouldn't be surprising if you met Sitting Bull, D'Artagnan Mephistopheles or David Harum, and you'd grin your head off if you lit onto Queen Mary, Henry IV, D'Israeli and Captain Kidd playing penochle on the grass. It wouldn't be queer if you met Abraham Lincoln strolling around, or busted right into Gen. Robert E. Lee or Sic Semper McGinnis. It's a funny place—a crazy place—a wild, wooly and winsome place.

There's a steel stage in Universal City where sixteen full companies can work at once. There's a rocking stage and Nature's stage—the mountains, gullies, canyons, precipices, gorges, forests, meadows, prairies and jungles. There are nearly three thousand people in Universal City, all actors, actresses or stage folks. It's only a little trolley ride from Los Angeles. You can go to Los Angeles on the Santa Fe direct. The Valhalla Communal Mausoleum

The Public Favor Communal Mausoleums

During the past six years the modern method of Mausoleum entombment has grown in public favor to such an extent that today there are more than 300 cities of the United States and Canada, which have built Communal Mausoleums. The proposed Valhalla Mausoleum will furnish St. Louisans the same opportunity that has been afforded citizens of other cities.

Indestructible
Built of imperishable granite, bronze, marble, steel and concrete, the Valhalla Communal Mausoleum will be as nearly indestructible as it is possible for modern engineering methods to make it, and will also be one of the most beautiful buildings of its kind in this or any other country. An endowment fund provides perpetual care, so that it will remain the same magnificent edifice forever.

Space to Suit Everyone
The private rooms of the Valhalla Mausoleum excel any private mausoleum at a cost of about one-fourth of the latter. The De Luxe sections give opportunity for individuality, at the minimum cost. The single tombs may be obtained at no greater expense than for earth burial. A beautiful chapel is also provided, where the final services may be held in comfort and amid sacred surroundings.

Your Space must be reserved now

Space in Valhalla Mausoleum will be limited to those who make reservations in advance. You cannot obtain space any time. You must reserve it now if you would have it when you need it. For full information about mausoleum entombment, mail the attached coupon today.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

The Parkway and the Widow.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Every great project is important is sure to result in some cases of individual hardship.

This is inseparable from progress of any kind which cannot be accomplished without injury to some individual interests. Indeed, the welfare of the whole people may demand from individuals the sacrifice of their time, their money and even of their lives in cases of great emergency.

The people of Missouri have placed on their great seal of the State the motto, "The welfare of the people is the supreme law."

We cannot, therefore, judge a great public undertaking from the standpoint of any one individual. We must judge it solely from the broad viewpoint of the welfare of all the people.

The widow who keeps a boarding house on Locust street is a case in point. She complained that she had paid taxes for the Locust street cut-off without deriving any benefit from it and she objected to the parkway as likely to result the same.

In the first place, this improvement of Locust street is too recent for the effect to have had time to show itself. And in the second place, no one would expect this to show a benefit to property merely as a boarding house.

But there is not the shadow of a doubt that this improvement has made Locust street a great artery of traffic and that it will increase the demand for business locations on this thoroughfare so that the discomfited widow will be able in the near future to sell her property at a handsome profit and use her unearned increment to keep boarders somewhere else with greater advantage.

Everybody knows that property on Locust street has increased several hundred per cent in value in the last few years by the cut through the park at the Public Library and that the property owners have reaped more unearned increment than in any other locality in the city. The complaint of the widow is not well taken.

WM. PRESTON HILL.

Get Out of the Rut.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Now is the acceptable time to improve our city. Old shacks must go. The whole people with sense will vote "yes" on the parkway. Other small cities have shown more civic pride than we seem to possess. Don't let us stay in the old rut, wake up; "improve." HURRAH FOR NEW ST. LOUIS.

License All Who Drive Autos.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Judge Calvin N. Miller of the Court of Criminal Correction, has decided that owners of automobiles, who hire them to others and who drive their own cars must have a chauffeur's license.

Now this is clear jurisprudence of the most pernicious sort. Why make fish of one driver and flesh of another. The intent, the spirit of the law, as evidenced by the examination which the applicant takes, is the protection of pedestrians and owners of others' vehicles against careless drivers, not to provide revenue. Then why establish a precedent and read into the law an idea repugnant to reason, and give laymen ground for contempt of law and jurisprudence?

Every driver of an automobile, be he millionaire owner, hired car owner, driver as a chauffeur earning a living, should stand examination and take out a license.

The law and the judiciary are very harsh with the licensed chauffeur who attempts to operate a car while under the influence of liquor. The law applies to him, and its intent is against the wealthy owners who drives his own car also.

But not so in practice; you can purchase a pleasure car and go right out on the street and learn to operate it there. But get a job driving some one else's car and you must have a license and show that you know how to operate a car first.

ROGER COURTNEY.

Anti-Parkway Argument.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I cannot think of anything more unjust than the contemplated parkway. In other words, all the people are going to vote whether 30 per cent of the people shall be robbed for the benefit of the whole city. It certainly will be a risky thing for a poor man to buy a home for himself when he can be helplessly robbed in a way the parkway contemplates. Of course, I have enough faith in the people of the city that this bill will be voted down, for if they did not, how could they tell what day they would be treated the same way. But the worst feature is that, as a thing can come up at all. It should be as impossible for any proposition of this kind to come up as it would be for the city to vote whether a certain man's property should be confiscated without pay of any kind. Down with the parkway robbery. It certainly was a foolish and sorry day for me when I decided to buy a home for my family in St. Louis.

OPEN THE SUMMER SCHOOLS.

The St. Louis Board of Education has voted to suspend the city's summer continuation and vacation schools this year. The stated reason is lack of funds. The sum to be saved this way is only a few thousand dollars.

The Post-Dispatch regards this decision as one that shames St. Louis before the country. We think it wrong that the door of hope and opportunity which our summer schools hold open for thousands of boys and girls of the poorer families should be closed for so paltry a reason—when it is notorious that public school funds have been spent for other items far less important; for example, the $8000 steel curtain separating gymnasium and auditorium in the new Grover Cleveland High School.

In these summer schools many boys and girls find their first and last chance to learn something of manual training and domestic science—cooking, sewing, etc.

Others find in the summer schools their only chance to advance themselves in the grade courses which for most of them will end their schooling.

Hundreds of others, unable to find work, and shut out from the orderly, wholesome study and play discipline of the summer schools, will find themselves drifting into the streets, loafing and exposed to hurtful temptations.

The public playgrounds will not be able to care for the thousands thus shut out of the schools; no effort was made by the Board of Education to co-ordinate its plan with that for the playgrounds—no warning of its purpose given until after playground appropriations were decided upon.

The board's plea of poverty is ridiculous; it can readily find the little sum needed, if it will. Two of the chief officials in the summer school system have offered to serve without pay. If the board will open the schools—they realize how much the work means for the children.

Children of the well-to-do can attend private schools; one such is being organized for them now. Children of the poor cannot afford the cost.

The board's decision is therefore undemocratic and unfair to thousands of children who most need the city's fostering care and encouragement. The summer schools should be opened as usual.

BACKWARD OR FORWARD?

Outside of some architects who have come to an eleventh-hour decision that the Central Parkway does not meet the needs of St. Louis, the objections to the parkway may be summed up in the statement that it will cost money and compel some merchants and other tenants to move; it will force affected property owners to pay for improvements.

How is it possible to have progress without cost and changes? Is not cost for needed improvements a good investment and changes to better conditions beneficial? Do we want everything to remain as it is—to save money and trouble at the cost of advancement?

If St. Louis is to stop improvements at the beginning of the new chapter because they cost money and cause changes, we must drop out of the competition of American cities; we will go backward, not forward.

POLITICAL MANAGEMENT.

The Texas State prison system, operating several huge plantations with convict labor, has run over $1,000,000 in debt. Not because the farms are infertile or the labor incompetent to earn a profit above operating costs, but because the management has been entrusted to politicians instead of to practical farmers. As a people we are remarkably slow to grasp the fact that public business can prosper only under the same rules essential to success in private business.

SMASH AT ENGLAND FROM THE SKY.

Zeppelins continued to carry the war into isolated England, penetrating farther and farther inland, until, on the seventeenth raid of the sort they found the enormous target of London spread out beneath them.

The impressive fact about the raids is not found in the extent of the damage done, whether large or small. It is found in the comparative immunity of the attacking craft. Neither England's own aerial fleet nor its great numbers of aerial guns seem able to do much execution against them. On the Continent it is probable that British aircraft in attack have inflicted more damage on the Germans than the Zeppelins have inflicted on England. In aerial defense the British seem as weak as in submarine defense.

London has cause for disquietude. The small percentage of losses to chances taken offers, under the law of probabilities, every incentive to keep up the raids indefinitely. And as long as their possibilities for terrorizing the inhabitants remain as they are, the statement that they are valueless in a military sense must be accepted with material qualification.

JOSE'S FAREWELL.

Nothing in Jose Acero's life became him like his manner of vanishing. This gory Greaser elevated Hell to the Nth power with a literalness that robs the phrase of profanity or levity and makes it read like a euphemism if not a eulogy—but his last words when the boys in Sonora rounded him up and stood him beside a grave to shoot him deserve to rank with any immortal last words that have fallen from expiring heroes in recent times. Jose, so the dispatch says, took a drink of whiskey, lit a cigar and nodded to his executioners, with the remark, "I am guilty as charged."

We could hardly admire the candor, terseness and simplicity of his remark more even if he had left off the wicked emphasis of the drink of whiskey and the cigar. Indeed, we prefer a debonaire manner in a Devil's disciple to a moral lecturer or a very poor sermon delivered by a scavenge. It is true that a few words of repentance might have been appropriately added to the confession of sins, but since Jose evidently felt no sorrow, we are glad that he did not crown an otherwise sufficiently villainous career with blasphemy and hypocrisy.

Far be it from us to judge Jose, but he has spared everybody the temptation by his charmingly unaffected self-judgment; so that it remains only to felicitate His Satanic Majesty upon a thoroughly congenial, highly resourceful addition to infernal society who will make himself instantly at home, and whose earthly career was a guarantee that he will make Hell hum.

GERMANY'S BELGIAN REPORT.

The German official reply—the White Book—to charges of atrocities in Belgium is mainly a plea of justification on the ground of military necessity. Although some of the charges of individual brutality and outrage are denied, the shooting of large numbers of the civil population and the burning of houses and towns are justified because it was necessary to warn the Belgian people that they must not attack the German invaders. Counter charges of attacks against Germans by Belgian men, women and children are made. The official statement pleads in proof of German military humanitarianism that in some cases offending women and children were spared and German soldiers even relieved their sufferings from wounds and hunger.

We are glad that some offending women and children were spared, and were relieved, but we fear the plea of the military necessity of barbarous reprisals on all ages and both sexes of the Belgian civil population for the sake of terroristic example will appeal only to military men who believe that war justifies everything.

The sympathy of the impartial public goes out to the Belgian people, whose country was ruthlessly invaded without cause, except military necessity, and without offense on their part except the refusal to be run over by huge armies. Popular sympathy even goes out to the women and children whose resentment of causeless and brutal invasion led them to try to defend their homes, their liberties and their persons.

Inevitably the impartial public seeks the original responsibility. When the Germans invaded Belgium, a friendly, inoffensive, peaceful and neutral country, merely for military advantage, they earned the just resentment and hostility of every Belgian. How can they successfully plead before the bar of civilized opinion that one barbarity justifies another? How can they justify the killing of Belgian men, women and children and burning of Belgian homes and towns by the plea of alleged "military necessity," which was the consequence of another unwarranted and barbarous "military necessity"?

How is it possible for the German Government to convince impartial observers that the responsibility for German brutalities inflicted upon Belgians, which were the alleged necessary consequences of the unjustifiable German invasion of Belgium, belongs to the invaded and outraged Belgians? The working of the German imperial mind is beyond common understanding.

PLAYING INTO ENGLAND'S HANDS.

The opinion said to be prevalent in Berlin political circles, that the United States is playing into the hands of England, is of consequence only as giving a phrase that accurately describes the reversed situation. Germany could play into England's hands no more effectively than through a course that can have no possible result other than the destruction of all sympathy for Germany in the few neutral countries in which sympathy is still felt for her.

MORE TIME FOR JUSTICE.

Circuit Judge Hennings' letter published Tuesday, casts much light on the working of the Circuit Court as an organization for the disposal of cases. It indicates that the delay complained of is not due to the negligence of Judges, who have heavy demands upon their time outside of the actual hearing of causes.

It is gratifying to know that the average delay is two months instead of six, after issues are joined. But this is too much. It impairs the efficiency of the courts, as human life being so unstable, many things may happen in the course of two months to work hardship on a person seeking prompt justice.

Judge Hennings' suggestion that most of the delay is due to continuances by lawyers would no doubt be shown to be a fact, upon investigation. Of course, where the attorneys on both sides agree to continuances, it is to be presumed that little or no injury to clients follows. It is the unnecessary continuance, forced upon an unwilling client, and the lack of a workable system in the assignment of cases, together with the breaking up of the last part of the week by "Law Day" that need attention. Also, better pay for jurors might result in less delay, due to the unwillingness of citizens to serve for the pittance of $1.50 a day.

It is understood that a majority of the Circuit Judges are in favor of the proposed plan to have a presiding Judge assign all cases, in order that no division may be idle and none congested. Judge Hennings says that, at present, Judges who are not busy ask to have cases assigned to them from divisions that have too much work. But this is optional. To be effective, it should be under the control of a presiding Judge, so that at all times every division may be doing full service.

THE OTHER FELLOW'S HOGS.

The men who have made millions out of lumber, oil, coal, or hogs have always been ready to seek and heed expert advice. Much of the business shrewdness that they are properly credited with possessing is simply a Socratic realization that they know nothing about their own business.

Thus begins a luminating disquisition by the esteemed editor of the Scientific American writing in McClure's. We like his delicate implication of editorial intelligence and expertise. To think that a man with a Socratic realization that he knows nothing about hogs may yet make millions out of hogs by consulting the editor! Why is it that the other fellow always has all the hogs and gets hog-rich, while the expert has nothing but valuable knowledge? It makes us mad to realize that knowledge is worth even less to its possessor than a Socratic realization of ignorance about hogs.

WHO GOES TO PRISON.

A REPORT just issued from the Missouri penitentiary throws some interesting light on the subject of who goes to prison. Perhaps the greatest surprise in the report is the explosion of the honest farmer myth. As against extremes in attendance like one florist and two brokers, there are 139 farmers, a mark approached by teamsters alone with 126. There are milder surprises. Thus, gardening is a surprisingly honest occupation, there being but one gardener locked up at this time. Butchers, too, are disposed to fool us with a total of only fifteen; while plumbers leave us almost no breath to discuss their total of twenty. Moving picture men have evidently not yet learned how to get into prison, there being but two. One is surprised to find a cartoonist there, and the plight of a balloonist is hard to account for. How could a balloonist—but there. Prison is the most cunningly devised of all traps. Julian Hawthorne, who got into one at Atlanta for lending his honored name to a mining fraud, came to the conclusion that it grows easier all the time to get into prison. Society conceals prison more effectively than it did. One can step out on what seems perfectly safe ground—and bang! One is caught.

There are easy ways to prison. Thus unclassified workers have a total of 910, cooks 69, clerks 55, porters 55, waiters 54, painters 52, houseworkers 45, miners 41, carpenters 39, chauffeurs 38, machinists 37. Bankers go to Leavenworth, and the single banker at Jefferson City does not so much represent the honesty of his kind as the overflow from the federal prison in Kansas. Promoters are wary. We have but two at this time. Only three lawyers seem to have defended themselves, and but one artist's art appears to have been that bad. Musicians, with a total of ten, have enough for a fair indoor band, and the fourteen printers, were there such a thing as a dishonest editor, would be able to get out a prison paper. There are two real estate men—now. There are ten nurses for the sick, three druggists for the prison apothecary, twenty-two bookkeepers to keep everybody's time straight, seven janitors to keep the place hot in summer and cold in winter, twenty-one firemen to make the insurance risk comfortable, two merchants to handle prison supplies, seven saloonkeepers to mix drinks, two physicians to diagnose pain, three sailors to forecast the weather, four plasterers to keep the plaster on, three bricklayers to keep the walls intact, twenty-seven bakers to man the oven, three dishwashers to wash the dishes, seven laundrymen to do the washing, four broom makers to make brooms, six barbers for the barber shop, nineteen tailors to do the sewing, a watchmaker to keep everybody's watch in repair, two cigarmakers to roll cigars, and a contractor to keep everybody at it blithely. Altogether the penitentiary is quite a complete community. One misses some of the sources of one's growing distrust of humankind, but they are in the main there. Probably they were all there before Lieutenant-Governor Painter left the gate open one night.

SOME MORE PARKWAY FIGURING.

Dear Sir—I have been reading Mr. Lionberger on the Parkway, and it shows me what figures can do. Now let's figure something else.

Nobody has ever said the mill tax was fair—a lot of judges have been guessing whether it was legal, and the contest is still on. There are just 200,000 shares of preferred stock in the U. Ry. Co. There are also just a few less than 200,000 voters in St. Louis. Let every voter buy one share of stock and then reap the tax. The stock is worth $20 a share now. Without the mill tax and with the good will of a city of stockholders, each share will be worth $100. Each voter makes $80 profit. Of this he gives $30 to the city for the Parkway, keeping $50. We thus get the Parkway free, and each voter has $50 profit to use in buying "made-in-St. Louis" goods. Thus—Value of 200,000 shares pfd. stock after tax repealed $20,000,000
Original cost at $20 per share 4,000,000
Profit $16,000,000
Purchase of Parkway as gift to St. Louis 6,000,000

Balance for buying "Made-in-St. Louis" goods $10,000,000

This is not all—not by any means. Without the mill tax to pay the United Railways can afford to improve the service, such as by installing electric heaters and lace curtains in cars, and by putting more "Safety-First" signs in, on and around its cars. This latter also helps develop our literary taste. If it desires to add to the municipal art uplift, it can have its cars designed by the St. Louis Institute of Architects, thus silencing any further criticism from that quarter.

The by-products of the plan are enormous. Jurors, being stockholders, would stop excessive awards in damage suits—a further saving, which could, if desired, be used in keeping up the Symphony. Stockholders' meetings could be held in the Coliseum, thus providing revenue for that institution, and so on, etc., etc., ad lib.

So we can have the Parkway, and the Taxpayers' Protectors, too. Figures never lie, you know (but sometimes people do.) J. O. VESPER.

The Rumanians, who somehow did not get into the last two Balkan wars and are therefore not in very good standing as Balkans, are said to be thinking of casting their lot with the allies. They have a million soldiers, which would make a very fair contribution to the gayety of nations in that part of the world, and share the general enthusiasm in that quarter over the Turks being in Europe. We may expect their book at the bookstands almost any day now.

Senator Stone, who originally said the status of Americans on the Louisiana was exactly that of neutrals in a British fort, is venturing the opinion now that the President will say what there is to be said.

It will be known after this week whether a state golf tournament can be held in Missouri of only eighteen holes.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

BEAUTY CULTURE.

R. S.—If you cease to give your body fat-making foods you will cease creating fat cells. It is no trick to reduce if you practice self-denial. Reduce diet. Avoid sweets, eggs, cream, fat meats and especially potatoes. Live mainly on lettuce, spinach, cabbage, lean meats, young onions, celery, tomatoes, etc. Take salted toast instead of bread and butter.

E. M. W.—For pimples and blackheads try simple diet. Avoid pastry and cooked grease. Wash skin frequently and immediately after a bath put a little sulphur lotion on the pimples. Blackheads may be softened first with a good cold cream and pressed out. Then apply a lotion made of half ounce sulphur and ounce glycerin poured into 8-ounce bottle filled with rose water.

MISS STOUT—So many hints on fat reducing have been published, we suspect that fat people do not read. Electricity is said to reduce. Walk daily at least 10 miles. This is the prescription given a woman who weighed 200 pounds. She began with a city block, and, in three months, was actually walking 10 miles a day. The flesh fell off, so she said. As for her feelings, she was very well. Another way: Go without breakfast, taking only juice of two oranges. Through the morning when the stomach feels empty, hot water may be drunk. Luncheon should be thin soup or a bit of cold meat and dry, hard toast. Dinner must be without thick soup, or meats or gravies, containing fat. Eat no vegetables with starch, a safe rule being to confine yourself to those which grow below the ground, with the exception of potatoes. Spinach is also good. Drink no milk, beer or anything containing sugar or malt.

CLEANSING.

MABEL—We hope some reader may know, and write, how to clean pink rose beads.

IGNORANT—White kid shoes: Milk and a good white soap. Rub in well and set in air to dry.

READER—Peroxide is used to take ink out of anything, even colored goods, without taking the color out. Four on ink spot and put in sun. Repeat if necessary.

MRS. A. K.—Ring made by gasoline or benzene: Try steaming over gasoline spout. If that fails, dip entire article to effect a uniform cleansing. You should have placed a piece of blotting paper under the spot when you were cleansing.

HOUSEWIFE—Alabaster: Immerse for some time in milk of lime, then wash in clean water; then dry, dust with a little French chalk. Milk of lime is made by mixing a little slaked lime in water. This has a "milky" appearance, whence the name. Turpentine or oil of turpentine is highly recommended.

M. H. F.—You might cover white wings with a cream made from naphtha and French chalk, allow it to dry on for a day, then brush off. There might be a slight improvement in the appearance of common starch mixed with cold water and laid on very thick. The paste should be allowed to become quite dry.

MARIE—Clean crepe de chine waist with best gasoline. Odor dispelled by open fire. To keep a muslin and linen from turning yellow, put bits of white wax between the folds and wash them in boiling water. Tissue paper should be also laid between folds, and blue is best for this.

HOUSEHOLD HELPS.

LORETO—Some obliging reader may send in for you a recipe for vanilla water.

G. H.—To remove phlegm (Fenster farbe), from glass, apply ammonia, leaving it for a time, then scrape.

MAY—Rose jar: Dry rose petals by spreading them out on paper. Pack them in the jar with a few pinches of salt and spices of spices. Put in one or two sticks of cinnamon and several cloves. Keep the jar corked when not in use.

LAMBERT—Pickled fish: Wash 4 pounds salmon or halibut; put in kettle and cover with boiling water; add tablespoon salt and onion salt. When done, drain and stand aside to cool. Take off skin, cut fish into convenient pieces. Pack in glass jar. Cover in porcelain-lined kettle, add two blades mace, 4 whole cloves, 3 bay leaves, small onion chopped, dash of red pepper, 2 tablespoons sugar; bring to boiling point; drop in the pieces of fish and let boil up once. Have ready 4 quart glass jars; see that they are scalded and made clean. Lift each piece of fish, arrange in the jars, cover with the boiling vinegar; adjust rubbers, take tops from kettle of boiling water, screw on quickly and stand in cold place. This will keep for months. Any fish may be used, though white-fleshed fish is best.

LAW POINTS.

XXXX—Joffre has two arms.

TONY—See Justice of the Peace.

G. F.—You cannot lawfully write and sell horoscopes.

G. M.—You may do business under any name not belonging to another.

PATIENT WIFE—You may attach after judgment is given; not before.

E. I.—Depends upon the contract with the furniture company.

BASS—Wooden minnows and artificial bait are not mentioned in Illinois fish law.

J.—Complaint Board might advise you as to your differences with gas light company.

C. V.—The heir you refer to as sixth has no claim upon the estate under the will, and is barred, even though he did pay something for the land in question.

MISCELLANEOUS.

J. P.—There are thousands of queries the answers to which we do not know. Yours was one of them.

WANT TO KNOW—Any U. S. army recruiting station where you would neither be transferred nor discharged.

TEACHER—Efficiency Board, Municipal Building, will give you full information as to playground instruction.

A. B. C.—For free cigarette habit treatment, write to: Charles H. Stone, Locust and Thirteenth, and 1210 Locust.

R. S. V. P.—Say, "If B's weight were 10 pounds more, her points would be rounded." There is no "e" in the word grammar.

LONESOME—There should be Catholic young men enough in Catholic societies and churches. (Cocoa butter is used for plumbing.)

UNANSWERED—You need not wear a coat if you do not choose to do so. Where there are rules, as in a library, etc., you are expected to accept them.

MRS. O. C. T.—There is no "dead-beat book." The St. Louis Credit Guide is a book giving ratings and addresses of the city. It is published by the Credit Record Co.

C. G. H.—House of Claims: Chief Justice Edward K. Campbell, Ala.; Associates, Charles B. Howry, Miss; Fenton W. Booth, Jr., Ala.; George W. Va.; Samuel S. Barney, W. Va.; Chief, $800; associates, $600.

A. B. C.—The composer of a song gets from the publisher $5 to $10. Authors get a royalty of 1 or 2 cents for each copy sold. The work of an unknown composer may not be wanted. If the publisher should think it exceptionally good and likely to be popular, he might buy it. Sometimes he becomes tired of trouble in getting a song into circulation. Try public library for list of music publishers. You or publisher may copyright.

JASPER—The snails of which you ask were bred to have been used in gaging in devouring plants, and could hardly be protected by the Humane Society. Jasper, however, has become greatly excited by the cruel brain trap, and we hope the gardener will relent. Jasper herself, however, has become more than any gardener. There is a bird that imitates the crow, and it is a very good and clever creature to die a slow and painful death.

Brain and the poor little snail. A brain death for the tiny thing. It is a great deal of a sad, and spring. O saddest song of a sad, and spring.

The Claim of Life

The story of a physician who violated professional ethics to meet the exigencies of an unusual occasion.

By H. M. Egbert.

CYRUS VANE stood in the laboratory of the hospital, watching the test tubes. The little colonies that were spreading upon the gelatine meant that the new bacillus could be developed in an ordinary medium. With this he planned to do what science had hitherto failed in doing. He hoped to cure infantile paralysis, and convert what was a scourge into a mild illness merely.

For six weeks he had devoted his time to this alone. Meanwhile the scourge had fastened itself upon the town. Children were dying in every possible way. Why, then, could he not give it to the world?

That question is often asked by those who are impatient for new remedies. The answer is that, before the conservative physician will make public his achievements, he must have the proof to have been piled up in at least a thousand experimental cases.

In short, all over the country physicians were trying out Vane's discovery, on monkeys, on apes, and perhaps here and there on children who were in the grip of the disease and could not have been harmed by the serum, even if it failed to benefit them.

But until the results of the thousand cases were known, the serum could not be made public property.

A Question of Ethics.

VANE had said as much to the worried woman who, having heard rumors of his discovery, groveled before him that morning, imploring the serum for their children. He had almost forced them away.

He walked thoughtfully homeward. The wide street was almost empty, only a few storekeepers sat under their awnings, gazing in the heat. Here and there was a knot of white crepe upon the handle of a door.

Vane glanced at the eyes of the townspeople followed him a little maliciously.

He was within a block of his house when a woman rushed out at him from an open door on whose handle the familiar knot of crepe hung.

"Dr. Vane—you will save my Freddy!" she cried, clutching at his arm. "One good—ask you this morning, you remember, and he has the disease. You won't leave me childless, doctor?"

"I can do nothing for you, madam," replied the doctor, and bowed convulsively at his plea.

"You don't understand. Listen, doctor. My second little boy is dying. I know you say it isn't ethical to give out the serum, but won't you forget about it and save my little life?"

Cyrus Vane was not a hard-hearted man. He stood up rather stiffly and looked at her with difficulty for his answer.

"I can't help you, madam," he said. "My work is for the sake of humanity, and selfish personal reasons must be forgotten. I am only at liberty to think of the race. If I stopped to consider persons I should never have the strength to go through with my work."

The woman was looking desperately into his face. "I don't know what you mean, doctor, but will you let my second baby die?" she asked.

"I am trying to explain," said Dr. Vane. "These things have to be done in an orderly manner. It is useless to ask me to make exceptions in single cases."

The woman shrieked. "My God, Doctor, are you going to let my second die?" she cried.

Little Dicky Is Ill.

VANE detached himself. He had long ago hardened his mind against such scenes, such emotions. In the struggle for the race thousands fell. He turned and walked onward. He heard a man's curses follow him. He turned down a side street toward his own comfortable house.

Vane isolated his wife and child. It was their only one, and there was not likely to be another. His birth had almost cost his wife her life. The little boy, a year and a half old, always ran to be taken up in his arms and kissed and petted.

Today the boy was nowhere about. He was wont to watch for his father from the steps of the house. But he was not on the steps, not playing in the hall when Vane let himself in with the key. Instead, a troubled woman came toward him.

"Cyrus, you must come to see Dicky at once," she said. "I put him to bed; he has been feverish all day, and—oh—"

Cyrus, he can't move his right arm. Frantically Vane bounded up the stairs. He rushed into the bedroom in which the little boy was lying. One glance at his face, and he flung himself down beside the bed in an agony of grief.

He rose to face his wife, who had followed him. She read the verdict in his eyes. She screamed and caught at his arm just as the woman in the street had done.

"Cyrus! What is it? It isn't!" "Yes," he said, bowing his head. "But it isn't the worst thing that could befall him," he added. "Many children make a complete recovery from it; some, of course, are crippled, but—"

"Cyrus! What are you talking about? Only last night you were telling me that you have discovered an absolute cure. You said there was not the slightest doubt about it."

"Dorothy!" "Then how can you speak of cripples in connection with Dicky? Have you got the antitoxin with you or must you go back to the laboratory. Oh, there must be no delay."

The Obdurate Physician.

THE man looked into her face bewildered. Had he never told her? Hadn't she understood?

"I can't use it, Dorothy," he moaned, sinking into a chair. "You mean it isn't for use?"

"Yes. But it has to be proved. It has to justify its use in a thousand cases. Humanly I am sure, but morally I am not justified until I am scientifically sure."

She was shaking him by the arm as he stammered out his explanation. "Cyrus! What are you talking about? Don't you see that Dicky has infantile paralysis, and don't you know that this is not the time to argue? Get the antitoxin!"

"Listen, Dorothy," said Cyrus Vane, rising and going up to her. "Try to understand me. A doctor may not think of persons. He works only for the race. Today a poor woman asked for some of the serum for her child. I was dying, and I died later. She caught me by the arm in the street and asked me to save her other child. I refused."

"You refused? My God, are you going to let Dicky die?"

"You were face to face with the issue now, and he saw that there was no relenting upon her own. Relent? He might as well have argued with a stone. From the bed came a feeble wail. Vane started and turned toward it.

"I'm so hot!" wailed the boy. "And I can't raise my right arm, daddy."

The man's face worked convulsively. His wife caught him by the hands; she sank to her knees and pleaded wildly with him.

"You're going to murder Dicky for me!" she cried. "No, Cyrus, you can't. Don't you see how brutal it is? If science demands that it is a devil. You must save him!"

Science Is Deserted.

AT that moment there came the sounds of altercation outside. A struggle, the door was burst open, and the woman who had pleaded with Vane in the street appeared, breaking in to hold her the butler, who tried to hold her.

"Dr. Vane!" she cried, flinging herself upon her knees and extending her hands. "My boy is dying. You can save him. You are going to save him—you must. Otherwise you will carry the brand of Cain on your forehead for the whole of your life."

Vane looked haggardly at the two women, then at the child on the bed. "If I do this my professional future is sacrificed," he said. "I am out of the ranks of the experimenters. Nobody will believe in me. It is a breach of duty. I—I—"

"Daddy, won't you please make me well?" pleaded the childish voice.

Vane hesitated a moment longer; then bowed his head and hurried from the room. He knew that the cry of his blood had proved more potent than duty. He knew that his work was ended. He had played false with science.

But he knew that at least two women would bless his name as long as they were alive.

Questions

SOME people ask questions because they wish to know more; some ask them because they desire to show what they already know, and some ask them because they want to show what others do not know.—Life.

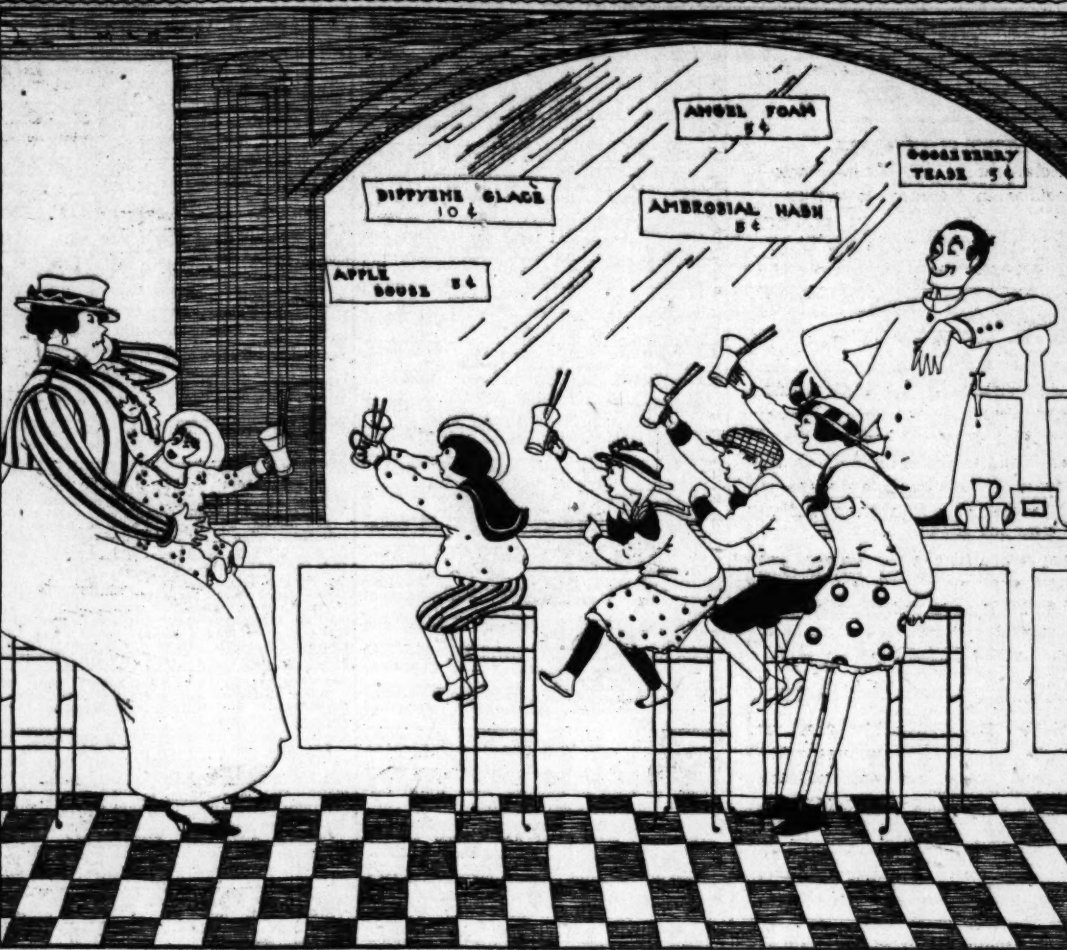

Real War Films.

THE French military authorities have arranged for real war films to be taken at the front by the big Paris moving picture firms. Four firms, the Gaumont, Pathe, Eclair and Eclipse, are sending their operators.

It is not likely that the public will be allowed to see the most terrible of the pictures. But it may be taken for granted that pictures of stern realities will be taken, for the primary object is to store them in the archives of the Ministry of War for future information. Some of the films, however, will be shown to the public, and most of these will be sold for exhibition abroad as a counter to the German cinema propaganda.

The operators will hardly be able to take satisfactory pictures without taking considerable risks, for one can not very well work a moving picture camera by parachute.

Mattie and the Sun Glass

Sandman story of the little girl who put to good use the various things she learned at school.

By Mrs. F. A. Walker.

LITTLE MATTIE was one of the loveliest girls in the school; there was no fun and play that she was not a leader in.

She took great interest in whatever she studied and always tried to see if it could be of any practical use to her.

One day as she was starting to school her uncle took a sun glass from his pocket and showed her how by holding it a certain distance from an object it would bring the rays of the sun together upon the object and make it so hot that it would catch fire.

"Oh, that is the thing the teacher was telling us about last week," cried little Mattie. "Uncle, do let me have that to see how it works."

Uncle lent it to her after explaining how to use it, and all the way to school, for she was very early, she was trying the sun glass until by the time the bell rang she knew how to work it perfectly.

After school that day many of the children stayed about the grounds and played. Mattie joined them for a while and then, having played enough, went off by herself and read about the sun glass in her books, leaving the other children to play.

AFTER a while Mattie looked up and saw that all the children had stopped playing and were gathered around an old wall near the play grounds. When she joined them she found they were looking at a poor little wren that had gotten its foot caught in a piece of thread that was fastened to a vine about twice as high as the tallest boy could reach. The poor little bird was fluttering wildly and the children feared that in its struggles it would break its little legs or wings. But they were helpless to aid it and could only stand there and pity it.

When Mattie joined the crowd she looked at the little bird a while and thought of everything she had ever learned and finally she thought of the sun glass. "Get me a stick about as long as you are, please," she said to the tallest boy.

"What are you going to do?" he replied. "You will just knock the little bird in the head."

"I am going to save the bird's life, if you will get me the stick," replied Mattie. More from curiosity than from any desire to help Mattie, the boy brought her a long, slender stick. Then she took the glass out of her pocket.

"What is that?" asked the tallest boy.

"It is a sun glass," replied Mattie. "Oh, I remember teacher telling us something about that once," explained the tallest boy. "Give it to me," and he snatched it from her hand.

"What are you going to do?" he repeated. "You will just knock the little bird in the head."

"Oh, give it back to me," said Mattie, with tears in her eyes. "I borrowed it, and then you do not know how to use it."

"H. A. H. A!" laughed the tallest boy. The idea of little Mattie knowing more than he did, and he commenced clumsily to try the glass on his hand.

"Ouch!" he suddenly cried and, dropping the glass began to rub the back of his hand vigorously. For in his ignorant handling of it he had burned himself on the back of his hand.

"You should not trifle with things you know nothing about," said Mattie with quiet dignity. Then she picked up the sun glass and the stick and, taking a piece of cord, carefully tied the sun glass to the end of the stick. Then she reached up the sun glass very slowly and softly, so as not to frighten the little bird, while the children looked on in curiosity. At length the sun glass almost touched the thread. Mattie very carefully moved it until she had it in a position where the sun glass would throw all its burning power on the part of the thread that was fastened; and a moment later there was just a tiny bit of smoke there, the thread, now quite burned in two, fell apart, and, with a little 'peep' the bird, now free, flew off to a nearby limb and quietly picked the thread from around its leg.

Rhubarb as a Food.

A MAN on the car from out in the country is taking home a basket of rhubarb, great, vigorous looking stalks that fairly gleam with health and joy. It is only lately that the world has discovered the glory of rhubarb. It was called the wine plant, and maybe that is the reason it was doubted, much like the career of tomatoes, which it took people a long time to learn the merit of because they were known as love apples, and the love was suspected as referring to their beauty and not to their quality as a food.

Since rhubarb invaded the market it has been growing in popularity. Occasionally one will meet another who thinks rhubarb is too common and cheap, a plant for style and good taste, but such people are getting ashamed of themselves. Rhubarb sauce is the child of the sun and grows for all, and a few cents' worth of the herb will make the sun shine for a whole family.

If you don't like it, learn to like it. It is easy to be entranced, easy to woo, easy to love, not because it is cheap, but because it is rich. Don't neglect it! It will make the brain glitter and the stomach smile.

Fables of Every Day Folk

By SOPHIE IRVINE LOBB.

The Glass House Man.

NOB upon a time there was a man who lived in a glass house. He built it especially that way, so that he could look out at everybody and keep an eye on what each was doing.

He was one of the kind who always preached on how he thought other people should live. He insisted on directing their lives, because he believed himself immune from temptation and tried to prevent everybody from doing anything that was pleasant or happy, terming all such things as "sinful."

One time went on this man imagined he could do anything. He also believed that everybody had for so long looked up to him as the beacon light which shone on other people's transgressions, that himself was invulnerable.

Now it came to pass that this young man found some long-lost friends who he had not seen for many years. They came to visit him in his glass house. They were young and joyous and had a broad outlook on life. They taught him some happy games and he marvelled that such things could be INTERESTING.

They "tripped the light fantastic" and taught him one or two harmless steps. He got into the rhythm of the thing and wanted to learn more. In fact, as usual with the prude, he insisted on learning the limit.

Then he invited others, who introduced a little wine and song, and occasionally there was a little rough house in the glass house. The man had been starved for so long (having continually preached that everything that was fun should be forbidden) that he cried for more and more. In truth, he was making up for all the years in which he had been strait-laced and hard-hearted and critical.

But one evening he forgot himself and his merry-making assumed big proportions.

Yet so long had he felt himself intrenched as the upholder of those whom he had so long preached against, that he could not help but feel himself intrenched as the upholder of those whom he had so long preached against.

He had ruled with a rod of iron that he believed he could surely pass the least word of condemnation as to any conduct he might choose to pursue. To make a long tale short, living in a glass house, the people whom he could see, could see him. He had not reckoned on this. And as he had judged, so was he judged. He now realized that no human is safe against temptations and that no humans may criticize, lest the same thing happen to them.

Next people who live in glass houses should pull down the blinds.

Now it came to pass that this young man found some long-lost friends who he had not seen for many years. They came to visit him in his glass house. They were young and joyous and had a broad outlook on life. They taught him some happy games and he marvelled that such things could be INTERESTING.

But one evening he forgot himself and his merry-making assumed big proportions.

Yet so long had he felt himself intrenched as the upholder of those whom he had so long preached against, that he could not help but feel himself intrenched as the upholder of those whom he had so long preached against.

He had ruled with a rod of iron that he believed he could surely pass the least word of condemnation as to any conduct he might choose to pursue. To make a long tale short, living in a glass house, the people whom he could see, could see him. He had not reckoned on this. And as he had judged, so was he judged. He now realized that no human is safe against temptations and that no humans may criticize, lest the same thing happen to them.

Next people who live in glass houses should pull down the blinds.

Now it came to pass that this young man found some long-lost friends who he had not seen for many years. They came to visit him in his glass house. They were young and joyous and had a broad outlook on life. They taught him some happy games and he marvelled that such things could be INTERESTING.

They "tripped the light fantastic" and taught him one or two harmless steps. He got into the rhythm of the thing and wanted to learn more. In fact, as usual with the prude, he insisted on learning the limit.

Then he invited others, who introduced a little wine and song, and occasionally there was a little rough house in the glass house. The man had been starved for so long (having continually preached that everything that was fun should be forbidden) that he cried for more and more. In truth, he was making up for all the years in which he had been strait-laced and hard-hearted and critical.

FRECKLES

Don't Hide Them With a Veil; Remove Them With the Othine Prescription.

This prescription for the removal of freckles was written by a prominent physician and is usually so successful in removing freckles and giving a clear, beautiful complexion that it is sold by druggists under guarantee to refund the money if it fails.

Don't hide your freckles under a veil; get an ounce of othine and remove them. Even the first few applications should show a wonderful improvement, some of the lighter freckles vanishing entirely.

Be sure to ask the druggist for the double strength othine; it is this that is sold on the money-back guarantee.—ADVERTISEMENT.

The Jarr Family

Written for the Post-Dispatch
 By Roy L. McCordell.

Mr. Jarr Wins Unanimously as the Neighborhood's Best-Hated Denizen.

IN Gus' popular cafe on the corner, a very swell party was in progress. It was a lynching party. Mr. Edward Jarr was the proposed nucleus of its activities.

The members of the lynching party were Mr. Slavinsky, the glazier; Mr. Malachi Hogan, night watchman at the brewery; Gus, and a few others who had handled and smelled of the box of roses which Mr. Jarr had brought into the place the day previously to make change for the express driver, for the box of roses had been sent to Miss Gladys Cackleberry, visiting Mrs. Jarr, charges collect. There was pretty poison ivy in the box, too.

And now the pretty ivy had done its dirty work, and the lynching party was mustered in Gus'.

While they were debating Mr. Percy Pinkfinger, who was to be Jack Silver's best man at the quiet little home wedding in the Jarr apartments that morning, had donned his new lavender trousers and his new frock coat and his new light yellow gloves and had proceeded to Mr. Jack Silver's apartment.

There he had found the groom-elect unattended and moaning with pain, his red and swollen face looking like the setting sun and his swollen hands outside the coverlet resembling bunches of bananas.

"My dear fellow what has happened?" inquired Mr. Percy Pinkfinger in agitation.

"I don't know," mumbled Mr. Silver through his swollen lips. "When Williamson, my man-servant, who returned to my service when I came into money again, heard I had to get married today, he shook me cold. He must have poisoned me before he left. For poor Williamson was a devoted fellow and probably thought I was better dead than married. But Williamson didn't mix the dose right. It took externally instead of internally. But whether it is to yet prove fatal I cannot tell. Anyway, the wedding is postponed, that's one comfort; and if I do die the flowers can be used for my funeral instead of my wedding."

Then suddenly he sat up in bed. "The flowers?" he gasped.

"Yes," replied Mr. Percy Pinkfinger. "You go over to Jarr's and tell them I cannot be married today," moaned the swollen Jack Silver.

"Not I," Mr. Percy Pinkfinger declared nervously. "That young lady may be desperate, who can tell? If the minister is there and all is ready she might marry me, although I know I should scream. 'No,' I would mind a doctor, but I wouldn't be with a minister and a thwarted bride-to-be under any circumstances!"

Meanwhile, Gus' poison ivy lynching party had moved upon Mr. Jarr's domicile, followed by an interested throng. They entered the apartment house, ascended the stairs and clamored at the door.

Mr. Jarr knew who the avengers were. He opened the door a little way and, without showing his face, thrust his swollen hands out for the inspection of Gus and the other avengers. At this mute testimony that he, too, was a victim, a great pity overcame the avengers and they departed.

Mr. Jarr found the box of roses and poison ivy in the icebox. He threw it out of the front window. Just then Mrs. Clara Mudridge-Smith and her husband and the Rev. Dr. Drone had driven up in front of the house in an open landaulet.

The box of roses, etc., struck them fair.

"Look out, people," cried Gus, "that's poison ivy! See what it did to us!"

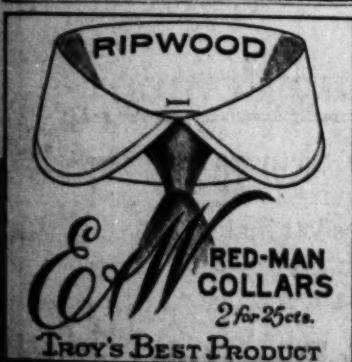

The Smith party saw and fled, but the poison ivy clung tenaciously to them even as they plucked at it to throw it aside.

The wedding is still postponed.

She Has the Proof.

At a meeting of Boston clergymen the other day this story was told: The minister was dining with the Fulers and he was denouncing the new styles of dancing. Turning to the daughter of the house, he asked sternly: "Do you yourself, Miss Fuller, think the girls who dance these dances are right?"

"They must be," was the answer, "because I notice the girls who don't dance these are always left."

How to Make a Hit

A Handy Manual for Rude Persons.

By Alma Woodward.

As a Hostess.

FIRST. Rearrange the drawing room so that the most uncomfortable chairs and settees are in prominence. Strew the floor with call, delicate looking vases, filled with flowers, so that it's practically impossible to walk around without knocking something over. And, to show that you're not worrying about the electric light bill, turn on all the bulbs in the place, making it impossible to find a corner where there isn't a blinding glare.

2. Do not leave your women guests to the tender mercies of the maid who's assisting them with their wraps. Be on the spot yourself. And make them happy in this way: "Oh, Maisie, dear, do let me give you some face powder, honey. Your nose is a sight! But then you do come a long distance, don't you?" "Bella, dearie, you'll find a lot of invisible hairpins in that silver tray. Do help yourself and see if you can't do something with your hair. It's all ends tonight, you poor thing." "Dora, did you PAY to have that dress made? Oh, you made it yourself? Well, I was going to say that if that dressmaker that Minnie recommended turned out a batch like that, for ME, I'd..."

3. When the cocktails are being passed in the drawing room stop the maid as she's presenting the tray to one of the men, in this manner: "Just a minute, Nora, Mr. Smith is not drinking. Oh, you ARE drinking again, Jim? I thought you were on the wagon. My goodness, can't you manage your husband any better than that, Bella? You know the doctor said it was bad for his liver!" (What Jim Smith says to his wife, Bella, when he gets home will make her your friend for life.)

4. As your guests are sitting down, according to place cards, remark gaily: "You see, I didn't put your wives within a mile of you, you men. I know how to make people happy, don't I?" A few little tactful bromides like this always add to the blitheness of the occasion.

5. If there are a few ladies of over-generous curves present, watch their plates until you catch them more than politely bare, then coo mischievously: "My dears! I thought you two were dieting. Oh, you funny, funny girls! Eat enough for a longshoreman and then go home and roll until you're applepie! You'll NEVER get thin."

6. During the friendly after-dinner chatter you might use this advantageously: "Your husband confided to me just a minute ago that he is partial to blondes, Dora. There's nothing for you but peroxide, pet!"

A Wise Fool.

ONE day Solomon and a fool were walking together.

"Solomon," said the fool, "why is it you never talk?"

"Fool," said Solomon, "that I may listen to other people's wisdom."

And then after a pause, "But why is it you always talk?"

"That other people, I suppose," quoth the fool, "may listen to my wisdom."

Whereat Solomon held his tongue, and went home thoughtfully.

Either Fo' or Seben.

LENA was much excited over the prospects of a camp meeting that was about to take place in the neighborhood. For weeks she had been preparing gay and gaudy feathers for the array, and now her outfit was complete, save a pair of much-desired patent leather slippers. She approached her mistress.

"Miss Ford," she said, "I sho' wants to git a pair o' slippers 'fo' de meetin' commences, an' I ain't got a single cent left."

"What size do you wear, Lena?" asked her mistress.

"Mah righ' numbah is fo'," she replied, "but I has to wash ebens 'cause fo's hurt me dat had I jes' natcheryly can't hardly walk."—Woman's Home Companion.

Don't Ever Let Anyone Tell You This as a New One

"YOU going to let 'em cremate you when you die?"

"Nope. You know I've always believed in giving the devil his due."

Friend Willie.

PLEASE, mamma, can I go over and play with Jimmie Brown?"

"Why, Willie, of course you can't. You've got the mumps, and it's very catching."

"I know it. That's why I want to go over. Jimmie likes to stay home from school just as much as I do."

A Peep Ahead.

THIS old millionaire and his beautiful bride, after their quiet wedding, had a quiet wedding breakfast, a delectable caviar, eggs pompadour, a truffled chicken, fresh California peas, champagne—so the quiet breakfast ran.

"My dear," said the old millionaire, as the fruit course, a superb Florida melon, came on—tell me, my dear—and he laid his withered hand on her young one—do you love me for what I am or for what I was?"

"The beautiful girl smiled down from the window into the admiring eyes of a young clubman who was passing; then she bent her clear, considering gaze on the gray ruin opposite and replied: "I love you, George, for what you will be."

THE trouble with most of the flowery sermons is that by the time the sermon is finished the flowers have withered.

Sorter Tickled Him.

ROBINSON was fined $10 for speeding last Sunday.

"Was he sore about it?"

"Not at all. He was tickled to death that any one could even suspect that old car of his was going over eight miles an hour."

It is a whole lot better to do things than it is to be able to explain how they should be done.—Memphis Commercial Appeal.

His Complaint.

I WON'T pay one cent for my advertisement this week," declared the storekeeper angrily to the editor of the country paper. "You told me you'd put the notice of the shoe polish in with the reading matter."

"And didn't I do it?" inquired the editor.

"No, sir," roared the advertiser. "No, sir, you did not! You put it in the column with a mass of poetry, that's where you put it!"

Nothing Doing.

HAVE you paid your income tax yet?"

"Who? Me? I should say not! If they're taxing incomes the Government owes me money."
